This ~~entire~~ communication is classified "~~Secret~~":

Full Investigation:

Authorized November 22, 1982.

Office of Origin:

New York, New York

Date Investigative Summary Prepared:

August 24, 1987

The following information will supplement that information previously reported in New York report captioned as

Basis for Investigation:

The Irish Northern Aid Committee, aka Noraid, aka INAC, was founded in 1970 by Michael Flannery, and two other Provisional Irish Republican Army (PIRA) veterans of the 1918-1921 Anglo-Irish War. According to Flannery, Noraid was organized for the sole purpose of "feeding and clothing the homeless, the hungry, and the naked". However, in April, 1982, the United States (US) Department of Justice (USDJ) charged in a suit brought under the Foreign Agents Registration Act (FARA) that Noraid "since its inception.....has acted as an agent in this country of the PIRA, its political arm Sinn Fein, and their affiliates".

The USDC judge for the Southern District of New York (SDNY) ruled that Noraid violated provisions of the FARA by failing to identify as a foreign principal the PIRA. Additionally, the judge found that Noraid had not fully identified its officers and other groups acting for it; that it had not given the true address of its foreign principal; that it had not described properly its activities; and that it had not provided an accurate account of its receipts and disbursements.

Since 1970, no less than 10 officials and/or members of Noraid, including Michael Flannery, have been charged with involvement in illegal weapons shipments to the PIRA. During Flannery's trial he admitted to immigrating to the US for the express purpose of organizing support for the Irish Republican Army (IRA). Also in testimony in open court Flannery stated that he supplied $17,000 in cash to PIRA weapons procurer George Harrison for the purchase of weapons destined for use by the PIRA. Flannery, Harrison, and three other defendants were all acquitted of all charges based upon a preposterous defense that they thought they were working for the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA). It is further noted that all indicted individuals in the Flannery trial admitted to weapons and arms procurement activities on behalf of the PIRA while in the US.

Since its inception, Noraid has claimed that the monies collected are sent to An Cumman Cabrach (ACC), Dublin, Republic of Ireland (ROI). That group was established in 1953 to "alleviate hardships on republican (PIRA) prisoners and their dependents".

Joe Cahill, a trustee of ACC, is also listed as a representative of Noraid, Belfast, Northern Ireland. Cahill is an old time PIRA "godfather" who in 1942 was convicted for his part in the murder of a Belfast policeman. Cahill eventually served 7 years in prison for that crime. In 1973 Cahill was convicted in the ROI for conspiracy to smuggle weapons to the PIRA from Libya. Because of Cahill's conviction, he has been continually denied a visa to visit the US. Notwithstanding these visa denials Cahill has entered the US illegally on several occasions to conduct fund raising activities on behalf of Noraid and conduct other PIRA related business. Cahill was last known to be in the US in May, 1984 when at that time he was arrested in the company of [redacted] Cahill and [redacted] were arrested by the New York Office (NYO) of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) and the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS). Another organization affiliated with Noraid, and in fact utilizes the same members and support network, is the Irish American Defense Fund (IADF) which is headed by Father Maurice Burke. This group was formed to raise monies to assist in the legal defense cost of various individuals arrested in the US for illegal weapons and arms procurement for the PIRA. It is noted that [redacted] supra [redacted]

This same edition of the Irish Echo Newspaper advertised a fund raising concert sponsored by the Irish American Cultural Club (IACC) featuring the Wolftones Irish Band on March 2, 1986 at a cost of $12.00 per ticket. All of the telephone contact numbers for this "IACC" benefit concert were listed to known Noraid members. On February 26, 1986 [redacted] of the Irish American Cultural Center in New York, New York contacted the NYO of the FBI complaining that the above concert was being sponsored by Noraid utilizing the IACC name. [redacted] advised that the IACC sponsoring this concert was in no way connected with the Irish American Cultural Center and was being utilized as a "front" by Noraid.

The August 5, 1986 edition of the Irish News Newspaper disclosed a story concerning the Noraid delegation to Northern Ireland in 1986. This tour group was headed by Noraid supporter and leader Richard Lawlor. During the tour Lawlor conducted a speech in South Armagh, Northern Ireland where Lawlor stated that Noraid was "totally behind the Irish struggle for freedom and independence" and desired to see (British) observation posts (located on the Northern Ireland/ROI border) "blown away to hell".

~~SECRET~~

In addition to the above detailed contacts many of the unknown sources listed above have reported that there is a recent rift in the national noraid leadership. Information has been received that the current true leadership in PSF in Dublin, ROI consists of younger PSF/PIRA members. These individuals are attempting to obtain total control of Noraid in the United States with younger Noraid members and PIRA supporters. Many of the current national US Noraid leadership that have been with the organization since its inception are extremely disenchanted with the current policies of PSF in regards to Noraid support. [redacted]

~~S~~

[redacted] continues to be involved in Noraid activities, however, has expressed extreme dissatisfaction with PSF. Other longstanding Noraid leaders such as [redacted] and [redacted]

b6

b7C

Chicago leader Alex Murphy, are also extremely disenchanted with PSF support of Noraid. Sources have reported that the PSF leadership are attempting to establish younger Noraid members and PIRA supporters in positions of leadership with the US Noraid organization. Ostensibly the purpose in this reorganization attempt is to facilitate a more vigorous stance, both publicly and financially, for PSF by Noraid.

Additional investigation is being conducted and is necessary to attempt to determine if the change in Noraid leadership will facilitate an increase in financial support of

Irish Northern Aid Committee, aka
Noraid, aka INAC

PSF and the PIRA. While it has been documented on numerous occasions that at least some of the monies from Noraid are utilized to obtain weapons and arms for the PIRA to date the amounts and direct evidentiary information to this extent have not occurred. With the change in Noraid leadership the possibility exists that more overt activities, i.e. fund raising activities and functions, could be more prone and/or directed towards the specific purposes of arms procurement.

In those instances detailed above it can logically be interpreted that substantial fund raising activities other than those reported above have been conducted. These activities are not only conducted utilizing the Noraid banner but also utilizing several other names of organizations for "front" purposes. It is also widely known that one method of fund raising is the utilization of donation buckets in the various and numerous Irish pubs and restaurants located throughout the New York Metropolitan area and in strong Irish areas such as Chicago, Boston, and Philadelphia. The exact amounts collected in this matter are unknown.

It has also been documented that one method that Noraid utilizes to send funds to PSF is through the courier system. This method also negates logical and normal investigative techniques through banking records and transactions.

Objectives:

To attempt to determine Noraid's assistance, both financially and support wise, to the PIRA in obtaining weapons and/or explosives.

To monitor Noraid activities as they pertain to the assistance of PIRA members in the United States illegally.

NIALL O'DOWD looks at Irish Northern controversial Irish American organization its 17th annual banquet on January 15 year's guest of honor is Seamus Twomey Chief of Staff.

WHEN 83-year old Michael Flannery briskly strode up New York's Fifth Avenue on March 17 1983, with the world press following his every step, the old IRA man, and Irish Northern Aid, the American movement he founded, had reached a high point in their history.

In Ireland, the memories of the dead hunger strikers were fast fading into the shade, but in the U.S. the extraordinary public reaction to the death of Bobby Sands and nine others, crystallized into Flannery's election as Grand Marshal of the New York parade, making him the most visible representative of the Irish in America that year.

Despite a boycott on the parade by the Irish government and its affiliated organizations such as Aer Lingus and the Irish Tourist Board, and Cardinal Terence Cooke's refusal to meet him on the steps of Saint Patrick's Cathedral and despite a concerted media campaign to discredit him — or perhaps because of all of the above as his supporters claim — Flannery carried the day in notable fashion and his organization, Irish Northern Aid benefitted greatly.

The lingering and most telling memory of that episode is an ABC 'Nightline' special on the affair, with former New York Governor Hugh Carey vainly trying to brand the elderly and somewhat saintly looking gentleman sitting to his right, as an international terrorist.

But now that glory day is long gone, and the IRA is coming out of one of its worst years ever. First there was the very poor showing of Provisional Sinn Fein, the political wing of the IRA, in general elections in the South last February. That was followed by the slaying of eight of their top operatives at Loughgall, County Armagh, victims of a British Army ambush.

Worse was to come, when an IRA unit detonated a bomb which killed 11 innocent civilians at Enniskillen in County Fermanagh. Around the same time Dessie O'Hare, aka 'The Border Fox,' was leading his band of rogue INLA operatives on a kidnapping and murder spree around Ireland before eventually being caught by police. Public reaction to both events bordered on the hysterical.

Shortly afterwards, in a stunning move, Irish Prime Minister Charles Haughey ordered his army and police to search the homes of every suspected IRA sympathizer in the land. In all, one in twenty homes in the Irish Republic was searched. Though very little was found, the hue and cry against the Provisionals and their supporters reached a new pitch.

Then, as the old year drew to a close, the IRA murdered John McMichael, a leading member of the UDA, the hard-line Ulster Protestant paramilitary group, who in the past had made conciliatory gestures towards the Nationalists. Again the reaction was shock and horror, as the renewed specter of another round of sectarian assassinations reared its head.

While events in Ireland do have a bearing on levels of IRA support in the U.S., it is always worth remembering that right from Famine times, hard-line backing for militant Irish republicanism — from the Fenians, to the Rising in 1916 to the Provisionals today — has always existed in the U.S. Even in fallow times for republicanism in Ireland, in the '30s and '40s of this century, there was still a large hard-core group in the U.S. dedicated only to the final defeat and withdrawal of the British from Ireland.

Thus, despite the Enniskillen, it is highly unlikely in the present circumstances in Northern Ireland that any significant dent in the hard-core support for the IRA in the U.S. could ever be achieved. In fact, the sheer social aspect of either belonging to Noraid or attending their functions is also greatly underestimated by outside observers.

Indeed, the clubhouse circuit of AOH, Noraid and various other Irish community dinners is a must for many Irish Americans, particularly those with any political ambitions, either within the community or on a broader stage. This aspect to Noraid continues, totally oblivious to events in Ireland, which in any event are often poorly reported in the U.S.

Given those continuing factors in their favor, Noraid expect to report in with $350,000 in contributions for 1987, according to top Noraid official Martin Galvin. In addition, he says, the organization has passed the 100 mark for units established. New units, mostly made up of recent young immigrants, have sprung up in several places the two most active in Sunnyside, Queens, and the Bainbridge unit in the Bronx.

Galvin claims also that Irish prime minister Charles Haughey's anti-republican line has resulted in a major drop-off of Irish American support for the U.S. fundraising arm The Friends of Fianna Fail, and Noraid have benefitted as a result, he says.

But all is not rosy for Noraid. What is at stake ultimately for the organization, is a much larger floating pool of Irish Americans who do not identify with the IRA or the Irish government, but who nevertheless — depending on events such as the hunger strikes or Enniskillen — will swing their support either way. Noraid contributions, for instance, jumped to record levels after the hunger strikes, but then dropped off.

Noraid admit they suffered a setback after the bombing at Enniskillen. Indeed, Enniskillen was adroitly seized upon by the British and Irish embassies to further their own anti-Noraid agendas.

But Noraid are particularly pleased at another accomplishment in 1987, which was performing a nimble end run around U.S. Immigration and State Department authorities, by arranging the entry into the country of two top-level Sinn Fein and IRA spokesmen, Cabimhin O'Caolain and Seamus Twomey. Despite the strict State Department ban on any Provisionals entering the U.S.

O'Caolain is a senior member of Sinn Fein, but Twomey, guest of honor at the Noraid annual banquet, is a much bigger fish. He is one of the few publicly identified former Chief of Staffs of the Provisionals, whose escape aboard a helicopter from Mountjoy prison in the 1970's quickly turned him into a Provisional folk hero.

In both cases, it seems the men gained entry after giving anglicized versions of their names — Kevin Keelan and James Twomey. Both were quickly sent on the Noraid tour circuit, taking in several cities across the U.S., while Twomey is expected to be a major drawing card for the dinner. (Twomey's presence in the U.S., first reported in this newspaper later made headlines in the London Sunday Times, among other publications.)

But the public relations' boost that the presence of Twomey represents will not disguise the fact that other setbacks have been handed to Noraid in 1987 as well.

The 1986 formation of Republican Sinn Fein, an even harder line offshoot of the Provisionals, who refuse to accept the decision of Provisional Sinn Fein to recognize the Irish parliament or Dail and culated a pastoral message calling membership of and support for the IRA "sinful."

There have also been other signs of hostility between the two, including Bishop Edward Daly's decision to bar IRA funerals from churches in Derry and outspoken attacks on the IRA from Fr. Denis Faul, a priest previously known for his criticism of the RUC and the British Army.

Fr. Faul told the 'Irish Voice' that he regarded the allegations as "absurd," and as an effort to embarrass the Catholic church. "I never met would be automatically suspicious of someone like that. But it is conceivable that he was attempting to find out what made ordinary Catholics tick and information like that could be very useful for the 'supergrass' tactic."

The U.S. consul in Belfast, Mr. Bob Myers, said he had "no knowledge" of any of his predecessors assisting Oldfield to recruit Catholic priests and would find the idea "distasteful and contrary to the role normally played in Belfast by the U.S. government." The consul at the time

Oldfield and I don't know anyone who did. It's possible he did meet priests, but the idea that they would help to recruit informers is ludicrous. Everyone knows that the RUC developed "supergrasses" at the Castlereagh interrogation center."

Other priests, who did not wish to be named, told the 'Irish Voice' that Oldfield did meet Catholic clergy often on the pretext of his interest in church architecture. But, said one: "I don't think he could recruit them as agents; they of Oldfield's tenure, Mr. Charles Stout, who now works in the State Department in Washington, denied that he had invited priests to lunch with Oldfield.

He said: "I knew Oldfield, but I'm blessed if I can recall having him in my house, and I certainly don't recall any lunches with priests. I really can't comment on this except to say that it doesn't make sense in terms of substance. It's not the sort of endeavor the U.S. government would get involved in."

Despite Financial Cultural Center

THE PRESIDENT of the United Irish Cultural Center of San Francisco, Mr. Jack Curtin has promised that the Center will not close due to the financial difficulties it is at present going through. Mr. Curtin has asked members to be patient while the Center goes through another change in the dining service. Hours and days will be modified temporarily and all commitments will be honored.

He gave as examples of the cost increases that they have had to absorb: Wages for restaurant, bar and catering

1986	$524,124
Insurance: 1984	$24,584
1986	$59,115
1987	$75,553

As a cost cutting measure the restaurant has been closed weekdays and will open Friday, Saturday and Sunday. They also have a Sunday brunch. The bar will now be open Monday through Thursday from 4:00 p.m. to midnight, Friday and Saturday 4 p.m. to 2 a.m. and Sunday 10 p.m. to midnight.

The President and the Board of Directors have appointed a new manager Andy Duggan from Belfast and it is hoped he will be able to increase business. He is the third new manager in as many years.

A drive for new members will begin and it is hoped that the younger people will make more use of the facilities. It is a widely held view among the younger crowd that they are not welcome at the Center and that the older crowd view it as their club. It will be an uphill battle for the Center to attract the new Irish back to the place, such is the ill-will that has been generated over the past years by those who were in charge.

One ray of hope is the efforts of manager, Andy Duggan to make available the Center for

Noraid, the most con- n of all, which holds in New York. This ney, a former IRA take seats in it, has put Michael Flannery, head of Noraid, in an invidious position.

Republican Sinn Fein is chiefly made up of southern Irish republicans, ill at ease with the drift of the movement into the control of the Belfast republicans, younger, more radical, and less worried about U.S. support.

Many of the old-time Noraid leaders in the U.S. relate far better to the Republican Sinn Fein leaders, such as Ruari O'Bradaigh and Dailhi O'Connell. Late last year, one of the best-known members of Republican Sinn Fein, Joe O'Neill, a Bundoran County Donegal publican, traversed the U.S. on a "goodwill tour" and allegedly told interested parties that Michael Flannery, the Noraid leader, was a strong supporter.

Indeed, the September/October issue of 'Saoirse' the Republican Sinn Fein newspaper, has a photograph of Flannery with Tom Maguire, the only surviving member of the Second Dail of 1920 — the one parliament Republican Sinn Fein claims as legitimate.

The caption underneath reads in part, "Michael Flannery, Irish Northern Aid founder, held talks with Commandant General Tom Maguire the two republican leaders reiterated their support for the 32-county Republic and rejection of the Free State. In keeping with this, they confirmed their continued support for Republican Sinn Fein."

But a public statement by Noraid when the split between Provisional and Republican Sinn Fein occurred, strongly supported the Provos. Thus Flannery would appear to be in a difficult position. For instance, he told a Dublin newspaper that he was supporting Republican Sinn Fein, but later withdrew the remarks, claiming he was misquoted.

Flannery's position, as the eminence grise of Noraid is vital. Much of the funding is channeled through him. He has achieved a revered status, particularly among Irish Americans, who see in him the embodiment of the centuries old struggle against the British. Were he to forcefully and publicly declare for Republican Sinn Fein, Noraid could hardly avoid a catastrophic split.

On the other side of the equation is the new wave of Noraid members, many recent emigrants from Northern Ireland, who bring the Provisional Sinn Fein ethos with them and make no bones about it and to whom Republican Sinn Fein would represent outmoded thinking. In the middle is Martin Galvin, Noraid's effective publicity director, who has become adept at smoothing over personal and ideological battles within the organization.

The new wave of emigrants represents a major boost for Noraid, and membership levels are up, but it could prove a double-edged sword. Even as the image of Noraid as a bunch of misguided Irish Americans living in cloud cuckoo land may erode as the young Irish, hardened by their years of involvement back home, begin to percolate through the organization, the old school represented by Flannery and much of the older top leadership of the organization will resent any pre-emptive attempt to run the group and tensions have already been reported.

Long-term, however, not just the Northern immigrants, but many of the young Irish currently streaming to these shores will prove likely recruiting targets for Noraid in the future. In that sense, unwittingly, the present emigration crisis from Ireland provides Noraid with their best recruiting ground ever.

Many unanswered questions will remain after the 17th annual gathering of the Noraid faithful — again a sell-out — has come and gone. How those questions are answered in 1988 could determine the shape of the most militant of Irish organizations in America, well into the next decade.

'Split in Noraid'

MIKE Flannery's support for Republican Sinn Fein, notwithstanding, Noraid is in no danger of being confronted with a catastrophic split as suggested by Niall O'Dowd ('Irish Voice,' 1/9/88). I am acquainted with most of the long-time Republican activists in this area. I know of possibly two or three at the most who continue to support the policy of abstention. This policy was never an etched-in-stone principle of Sinn Fein, merely a tactic.

The futility of this tactic became evident to earlier leaders and manifested itself in the establishment of Fianna Fail, which until recently depended upon those who aspired to a United Ireland for support. DeValera recognized that the only way out of the post-Civil War morass was through the political process. That Fianna Fail failed to pursue the aspirations of the Irish people is another issue entirely.

The decision of the delegates who attended the 1986 Ard Fheis, to abandon abstentionism was arrived at through the democratic process of majority vote as provided for in the amended constitution of Sinn Fein. For reasons best known to themselves, Ruairi O'Bradaigh and Daili O'Connell chose to reject this decision and with a handful of followers set out to foment another split in the Republican movement.

To date their only contribution has been time worn and outmoded rhetoric. Almost immediately they sought to have the ban provided by Section 31 clarified in respect to their position.

When Joe O'Neill came to this country he was confronted with questions which he was unable or unwilling to answer. He was told to go home and tell the leadership of Republican Sinn Fein to get their act together. To deliberately foment another split is stupid; to persist in it is criminal. If Noraid's detractors in the Free State establishment are hoping for a catastrophe in the organization, they are sadly mistaken.

Hearing for N J activist

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — A hearing has been scheduled at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 27, in the East Rutherford Municipal Court to air the charge of criminal trespass against Bernard Mackle of Toms River. Mackle was arrested on Dec. 14 during a protest against the appearance of two British bands at the Brendan Byrne arena.

Mackle, a long time activist in the cause of freedom and unity in Ireland, says he never joined the protest group which was confined behind steel barriers. He decided not to unfurl his wide banner with the inscription "England Get Out of Ireland," he says. As he left the area to return to his car, he was arrested by security officers, he reported.

The 67-year-old civil engineer will plead not guilty to the charge. He is an army combat veteran of World War I and is a survivor of the attack on Pearl Harbor.

On the day of the concert, which featured bands of units which had served in Northern Ireland, Superior Court Judge Kevin O'Halloran granted the Irish American Unity Conference of North Jersey the right to demonstrate. The New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority had attempted to block public protest.

Judge O'Halloran's temporary restraining order against the authority was in advance of a pending suit filed by the IAUC to determine if the arena is a public or private site.

Members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians Div. 1 in Ocean County are expected to be in court in support of Mackle who is the division's political education chairman. The court is located in the municipal building on Everett Place.

TWOMEY AT INA DINNER

More than 1,000 persons, including politicians, labor figures and leaders of Irish organizations, packed Irish Northern Aid's sixteenth annual dinner last Friday. The highlights of the evening included a stirring speech by veteran Irish Republican leader Seamus Twomey, a poignant tribute to the Loughgall patriots, a message from the leadership of the Irish Republican Movement. The event received major news coverage from BBC and ITN British television network.

Tribute
Following the welcoming remarks of dinner Chairman Edward Brady, Tom Egan read a moving tribute to the eight Irish Republicans who gave their lives for Ireland at Loughgall as their enlarged photographs that the MacBride Principles legislative campaign would continue on as a living tribute to MacBride.

Mike Coogan, Dorothy Hayden Cudahy of Irish radio, Kathie Holmes of the American Irish Congress, Eileen O'Flaherty of the Fenian Society, Marge Suter of the Irish American Defense Fund, and Frank Beirne of the St. Patrick's Day Parade.

Also on the dais were labor leader Pat Harvey, Frs. Pat Moloney and Maurice Burke, as well as Professor Donal MacNamara.

Seamus Twomey
Veteran Republican leader.

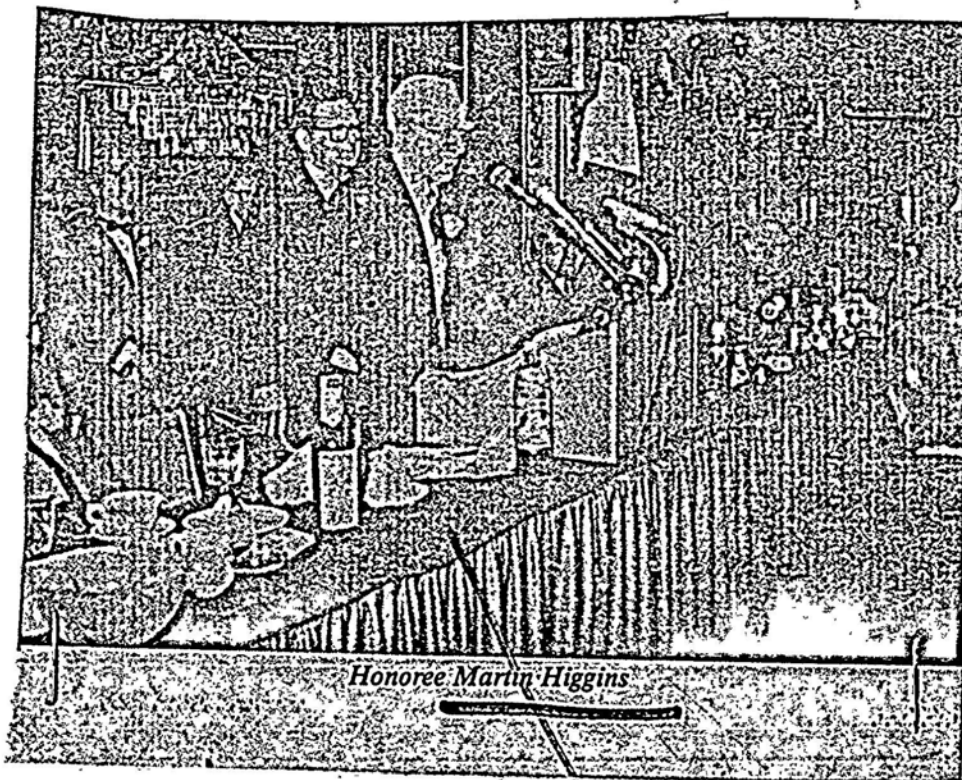

Seamus Twomey was introduced to a standing ovation. In his remarks Twomey detailed the central role which violence played in Britain's colonial system for ruling Ireland. Such violence takes the form of shoot-to-kill assassination, hunger strike deaths, torture, loyalist assassination and institutionalized sectarianism.

Twomey praised the courage and determination of Irish Republican Army Volunteers, who had demonstrated the ability to win freedom despite overwhelming odds. He expressed complete and unshakeable confidence that ultimately Ireland would have freedom because of the patriots of the IRA.

Mr. Twomey also expressed gratitude for the financial, political and publicity support of Irish Northern Aid as well as like minded Americans. He called such help crucial to the achievement of ultimate victory.

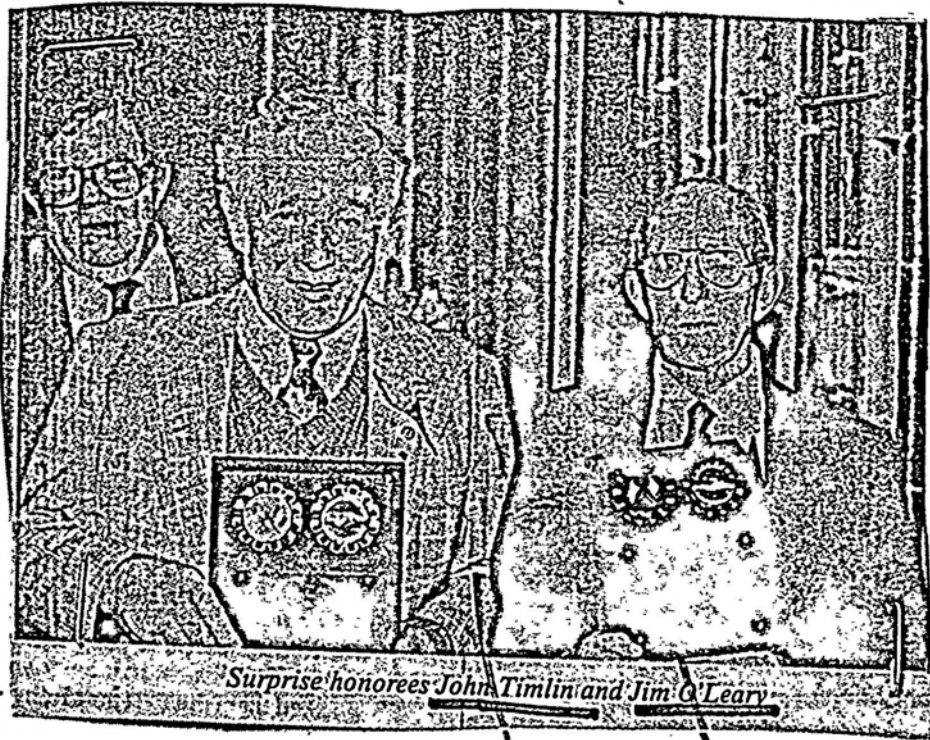

The speech and Mr. Twomey's presence was filmed by BBC, ITN and covered by all British and Irish papers.

REPUBLICAN MESSAGE

The Irish Republican Movement sends its greeting to the members and supporters of the Irish Northern Aid Committee on this the occasion of your sixteenth annual testimonial dinner.

"You are to be congratulated on your resilience over more than a decade and a half, in support of the Irish people's rights to national self-determination. If endurance was the only criterion for success, the battle selves for the campaigns which will inhibit the British Government's ability to do as it pleases.

"1988 also marks the twentieth anniversary of the initiation of the struggle for civil rights in the Six Counties.

"The denial of civil and legal rights to the nationalist population by Westminster and its surrogate, Stormont, in both historical and contemporary contents, was not and is not a simple act of spite.

INA Dinner Dais

would long be over.

"Two years ago, with the signing of the Hillsborough Treaty and its objective of consolidating partition in perpetuity—we predicted that we were facing an upswing in British Government oppression and Dublin Government collaboration.

The British Government's timetable for that had to be adjusted to accommodate the abatement of the unnecessary loyalist opposition to Hillsborough. That process is now all but complete.

"In 1988 and 1989, therefore, we can expect the full implementation of the entire apparatus of oppression. In this international opinion and particularly political opinion in the United States, will play a major role.

"It is vital that our friends in the United States gear them-

The denial of these rights was and is deemed necessary to the continuing ability of the British Government to control and occupy, necessary to the continuing ability of the British Government to deny us our right to national independence and sovereignty.

"The international exposure of the denial of civil rights erodes their ability to maintain that greater injustice from which our present troubles flow.

"Your activities in bringing political pressure to bear on the British Government on these issues directly inhibits its ability to win. Your involvement in those activities is vital to a just conclusion of our struggle.

"For our part we will pursue the struggle on all fronts. Alone we can probably struggle forever. With your active support, we can win."

EXCLUSIVE

When asked by the 'Irish Voice' if the new organization presented a split from Noraid, Flannery replied: "In sense it is, it could be interpreted that way... you might say it is the end of my association with Irish Northern Aid." His decision has seemingly precipitated a major crisis in Noraid. Last week their 'Irish People' newspaper did not appear for the first time since it was founded in July 1972, and there are said to be major problems within the organization as a result of the setting up of Flannery's new group.

Noraid publicity director Martin Galvin, however, denied there was any split in the organization and said the reason the 'Irish People' did not publish last week was purely due to mechanical problems. He pointed out that a meeting of Noraid leaders was held last Sunday and that Flannery attended.

The new group is an American outgrowth of a split in Provisional Sinn Fein in Ireland last year over the decision to take seats in the Irish parliament. Several hardline members left the organization and formed a rival group called Republican Sinn Fein.

Also siding with the new group are Clan na Gael leader Joe Stynes and veteran Republican George Harrison, both of whom have become trustees of Cumann Na Saoirse. The group has begun mailings to seek funds, and has run an advertisement in 'Saoirse', a Republican Sinn Fein publication.

In the advertisement and in the mailings, Flannery's personal signature accompanies a statement which reads: "I ask all my friends to support Cumann Na Saoirse in their efforts on behalf of Irish political prisoners and their dependents."

Flannery told the 'Irish Voice' that he still supports the

IRA as does Republican Sinn Fein but that the IRA should "have nothing to do with Adams' Sinn Fein" — an allusion to the Provisional Sinn Fein leader Gerry Adams. "There are a whole number of people across the country who support Republican Sinn Fein, who will also support the new group, the Irish Freedom Committee," Flannery said. "If it builds up its fundraising power then a split might very well be in question."

Republican Sinn Fein has been trying assiduously to establish a base in the U.S. Currently one of its chief organizers, Joe O'Neill from Donegal, is in the U.S. In addition, several IRA prisoners in Northern Irish jails have recently stated that they wish to be considered Republican Sinn Fein prisoners. Noraid In Crisis: Flannery To Go?

Michael Flannery, the 87-year-old founder of Irish Northern Aid, the hardline Republican movement in the U.S., has sided with a rival new organization called Cumann Na Saoirse, (the Irish Freedom Committee), which has been set up by a splinter group of Sinn Fein.

Flannery in Noraid Rift

The setting up of An Cumann Saoirse/Irish Freedom Committee in the United States with the support of Michael Flannery is an important event. Flannery is not only the founder of Noraid, he is also the "Grand Old Man" of militant Irish Republicanism in this country. Patrick Farrelly reports on the background to the development.

THE LATEST rift in Noraid has its roots in the historic Sinn Fein convention held in November 1986 that decided to drop the party's abstentionist attitude to Leinster House, the parliament in Dublin.

Noraid was set up by Flannery and others to collect funds in the U.S. to help the dependants of IRA prisoners in Ireland. The Irish and British governments claim that Noraid's real role is to raise funds for the IRA.

Irish Northern Aid was set up after a split in the Sinn Fein/IRA movement in Ireland at the start of the present Troubles in 1970. The movement split for a number of reasons: With Loyalist attacks on the Catholic ghettos in Belfast many of its northern supporters felt that the IRA leadership was incapable or unwilling to defend its people. At the same time the leadership wanted Sinn Fein to take seats in the Dublin and Belfast parliaments. At conventions in 1969 and 1970 the IRA and Sinn Fein split and the Officials and Provisionals came about.

The Officials eventually evolved into what is now known as the Workers Party, a left-wing party based mainly in the South that is anti-Republican in its political orientation. The Provos remained intact as simply Sinn Fein and the IRA, a movement that operates politically and militarily in Northern Ireland and is involved in political agitation in the South.

When the split came in Ireland, Flannery and a group of veteran Republican activists came to the support of the Provisionals. Like Flannery many were Southerners who had left Ireland after the Irish Civil War and had a deep-seated hatred for the parliament in Dublin, which they felt had sold out the struggle for a united Ireland.

After the 1981 hunger strikes it became evident to the Provos that political support in the Irish Republic was essential if they were to be an effective force. A new and more radical leadership had emerged based mainly in Belfast and Derry centered around Gerry Adams. This supplanted Rory O'Brady and Dave O'Connell, both based in the Republic. Adams was increasingly of the opinion that for the Provos to be of any relevance they must contest elections in the Republic and take their seats if elected.

The showdown came in November 1986. In the weeks before the Sinn Fein meeting the IRA held its first convention in 6 years. At the convention it decided to overturn the rule on abstention. In September Flannery traveled to Ireland and tried to talk Adams out of dropping abstention. He was unsuccessful.

In the Sinn Fein convention that followed O'Brady and O'Connell walked out with their supporters after they had fought unsuccessfully to retain the abstention rule. The same day they set up a new organization, Republican Sinn Fein.

Immediately the phone lines to America were burning up with appeals to Flannery and his associates to join up. Martin Galvin, Noraid's publicity director, supported the leadership in Ireland but Flannery and a number of prominent Noraid leaders across America were coming out for Republican Sinn Fein. Many others were seen to be wavering. However, unlike the split in 1970 the IRA had remained intact. R.S.F. were left without an armed wing and instead supported the IRA, claiming all the while that its political wing had sold out.

This left Flannery and his associates with a problem: Noraid supporters in the U.S. identify more with the IRA than with any political party. Without an armed wing the R.S.F. has no teeth and little attraction to Noraid supporters. In the last few months a small number of prisoners have come out for R.S.F. Prisoners, however, do not make an army.

For some time many of the older and more conservative Noraid members have been unhappy with the radical socialist direction taken by the new Sinn Fein/IRA leadership. They have always felt more comfortable with — and were personally better acquainted with — the old O'Brady/O'Connell people.

Similarly many of the new leadership have been unhappy with the inefficiency and political conservatism of Noraid. However, the Adams leadership has tried to avoid a major rift in the U.S. and last year former IRA Chief of Staff, Seamus Twomey, was sent to the U.S. to smooth ruffled feathers. While Twomey was here, Flannery debated the issue with him on a number of occasions but remained unconvinced.

Now R.S.F. have set up the Irish Freedom Committee to perform the same function as Noraid does for the IRA. This is a clear attempt on their part to cut into the fundraising power of Noraid. That Flannery has joined them is a major boost, given his enormous prestige among Irish American Republican activists. How long Flannery can also retain his membership of Noraid as well is open to question.

Big Turn-Out for Noraid

OVER 600 people donned their party suits and braved the icy cold weather in Boston to attend the 18th Annual Noraid Banquet held at the John Hancock Hall. The event attracted a host of representatives from the Boston political scene, including State Senator Frank Davis, City Councillors Albert "The Dapper" O'Neill and Jimmy Kelly and Sheriff John Megonagle from Middlesex County, MASS.

Guest speaker for the night was Fr. Maurice Burke, a well known figure in Irish support groups. In keeping with the Stalker revelations on the "shoot to kill" policy, Noraid was described at the February 13 banquet as the largest and fastest growing Irish American organization, continuously increasing its activities to reach out to more supporters.

Also present were John Hurley, newly elected president of the Boston unit, National director James Munsell and Joe Lydon, president of the Gaelic Athletic Association (GAA). John Curran from Sound of Erin radio was master of ceremonies for the night.

Asset advised that the current struggle in the Noraid organization, because of a fractionalization in political support between the Republican Sinn Fein and the Provisional Sinn Fein, has caused a great disturbance in that group. Because of that current flux, Clan Na Gael continues to emerge as a stronger, more unified group. According to asset, unlike Noraid, Clan Na Gael does not associate or align themselves with any political organization and their express purpose is support for military action and its supporters in Ireland. Consequently, monies that are forwarded to Ireland are forwarded directly to the military wing (PIRA) and distribution is made from that point. Although the total monies collected by Clan Na Gael are lesser than that collected by Noraid, 100 per cent of those monies goes to the armed struggle.

Asset further advised that the method for distribution of those funds rely, as he sees it, on two facets, one being personal courier that would transport slightly less than ten thousand dollars at a time to Ireland. This would be done by any individual who is a trusted associate of family lineage that would take the money to a designated place or individual in Ireland. The second method, would be electronic fund transfer from a bank here in the US to a bank in Ireland. Asset believes that this would be done through an Irish bank here in the US with whom a working relationship has been developed. Asset feels confident that Allied Irish Bank would be a likely institution and asset is sure that an individual such as BILL BURKE, the 1988 Grand Marshall of the St. Patrick's Day Parade, would be a cooperating individual. Asset has heard that when individuals of Irish descent, whether legal or illegal immigrants, are starting a business, BURKE is a likely individual to receive funding from. According to asset; most of these individuals have past republican ties.

Asset further assesses, that Clan Na Gael is a group to be focused on now, and in the future, because of their more organized and unified stance with regard to the republican military cause. Asset believes that the current internal problems in Noraid will not soon resolve themselves and that organization could have a very checkered future. However, if this happens, Clan Na Gael will be the organization that emerges as the major support organization for the republican cause.

This was the entirety of information that asset provided on Clan Na Gael at the current time although future conversations will continue about the organization and its current national leader MIKE MCGINLEY.

If yes, identify each such foreign principal and describe in full detail your activities and services:

We have forwarded funds to An Cumann Cabhrach in Ireland for distribution to the families of Irish political prisoners. The amounts are reflected in the attached financial statement. In addition, we have organized various demonstrations to support an end to British rule in Ireland. These have included an annual dinner at the Astorian Manor, Queens, NY on 1/17/86, marches and pickets daily at the British Consulate in New York at 845 3rd Avenue. The dates and locations of each organized demonstration have been reported to the Irish People newspaper (copies attached). We also have chapters that engage in similar activities in cities around the country, including, but not limited to, P.O. Box 28386 Blvd. Stat., Philadelphia, PA 19149; P.O. Box 864, Boston, MA 02143; P.O. Box 30100, Chicago, ILL 60630; 1133 Mission Street, San Francisco, CA 94102. These activities, with exception of the transfer of funds to An Cumann Cabhrach, were not done on behalf of a foreign principal. They were the result of the exercise of First Amendment Liberties of the members to advocate the end of British rule in Ireland.

¹The term "foreign principal" includes, in addition to those defined in section 1(b) of the Act, an individual or organization any of whose activities are directly or indirectly supervised, directed, controlled, financed, or subsidized in whole or in major part by a foreign government, foreign political party, foreign organization or foreign individual. (See Rule 100(a)(9)).

A registrant who represents more than one foreign principal is required to list in the statements he files under the Act only those foreign principals for whom he is not entitled to claim exemption under Section 3 of the Act. (See Rule 208.)

12. During this 6 month reporting period, have you on behalf of any foreign principal engaged in political activity² as defined below?
Yes ☒ No ☐

If yes, identify each such foreign principal and describe in full detail all such political activity, indicating, among other things, the relations, interests and policies sought to be influenced and the means employed to achieve this purpose. If the registrant arranged, sponsored or delivered speeches, lectures or radio and TV broadcasts, give details as to dates, places of delivery, names of speakers and subject matter.

See #11 and #13

13. In addition to the above described activities, if any, have you engaged in activity on your own behalf which benefits any or all of your foreign principals? Yes ☒ No ☐

If yes, describe fully.

Speeches by Michael Flannery, without prepared text, annual dinner, demonstrations, see answer to #11.

²The term "political activities" means the dissemination of political propaganda and any other activity which the person engaging therein believes will, or which he intends to, prevail upon, indoctrinate, convert, induce, persuade, or in any other way influence any agency or official of the Government of the United States or any section of the public within the United States with reference to formulating, adopting, or changing the domestic or foreign policies of the United States or with reference to the political or public interests, policies, or relations of a government of a foreign country or a foreign political party.

Addendum to Supplemental Statement
July 29, 1987

Disbursements to The Irish People, Inc. or the Irish People from January 1975 through January 1987:

A. Disbursements - Monies

The Irish Northern Aid Committee (INAC) has disbursed money to the Irish People each year since 1975, from time to time, in payment for advertising and publicity of INAC activities and events, including fund raising dinners, rallies, etc. Between January of 1975 and January of 1976 this amounted to roughly $45,000; in 1981, roughly $21,896; in 1982, roughly $33,741. The disbursements in other years from 1975-1983 were roughly comparable, exceeding $130,000 from 1977 through 1982, and diminishing thereafter. In 1986, INAC disbursed roughly $4,762 to the Irish People for advertising and publicity, and $6,000 for the sublease of office space.

B. Disbursements - Things of Value

From approximately February 23, 1975 to March 1, 1976, the Irish Northern Aid Committee (INAC) provided office space and telephone service to the Irish People rent free.

OO: NEW YORKThis communication is classified "~~Secret~~" in its entirety.

Full investigation authorized 11/22/82.

As New York is aware, captioned investigation was a topic of discussion during a meeting at FBI Headquarters on March 30, 1988. At that time New York was advised that FBIHQ had recently conducted a review of the NORAIID investigation in the course of re-assessing the FBI's Irish Terrorism Sub-Program.

It is obvious that NORAIID, as a registered agent of the Provisional Irish Republican Army (PIRA) under the provisions of the Foreign Agent's Registration Act (FARA), is legally providing financial support to PIRA. Review of the semi-annual FARA submissions made by NORAIID to the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ) indicates that NORAIID contributes an average of at least $300,000 to the An Cumann Cabrach (ACC) on an annual basis. The ACC is the welfare arm of the Provisional Sinn Fein (PSF) and is responsible for making payments to the dependents of republican prisoners.

Although evidence exists which indicates that some members of captioned group support the PIRA terrorist ideology, investigation to date has failed to link any NORAIID funds with the purchase of weapons and/or explosives. Further, investigation has shown that NORaid utilizes couriers to funnel their cash payments to the ACC in Ireland. This system of cash payments has thwarted the Bureau's ability to trace any money flowing through NORaid to PIRA in Ireland.

FBI Headquarters is of the opinion that our efforts would be better served to concentrate our investigative resources on those individuals who are in leadership positions in NORaid rather than the organization itself inasmuch as some individuals within NORaid may not support the PIRA ideology or participate in their activities.

Accordingly, New York is directed to close captioned matter as a separate investigation. New York should continue their aggressive investigations of individual leaders of NORaid which are on-going in the division. In addition, New York should continue to provide FBI Headquarters with appropriate justifications for opening full investigations on other persons involved in NORaid/PIRA activities who may be identified in this matter.

New York should advise offices with outstanding leads of the closing of this matter.

TERRORISM — where the money comes from

HAVE successive British Governments taken a short-sighted approach to countering terrorism over the years, and is it already too late to hope for success? Instead of concentrating on the body count, against the IRA, would they have been better to try to attack its economic base and expose its corruption, to prevent it becoming part of the social fabric of nationalist areas?

Those are some of the intriguing, and ultimately depressing, questions prompted by The Financing of Terror, (New English Library £3.95), an exhaustive study of the ways in which modern terrorists make their money, by James Adams, a former Middle East expert, now defence correspondent with the Sunday Times. Although the PLO occupies much of his attention, about 80 pages out of 370 are devoted to the IRA, a tribute to its high reputation in the terrorist world as an extractor of funds and a manipulator of the political process.

His sources are as well documented as they can be, given the sensitive nature of the information, and they confirm much of the hearsay evidence about the IRA's deep involvement in "legitimate" business enterprises since its earliest days. No effective action was taken against them, for reasons that can only be guessed at, and they provided the base of money and community support from which the present organisation has grown.

Noraid

Only once, in the history of international terrorism, have governments combined to use the law effectively to virtually cut off a source of supply. Noraid was the target and Adams uses the experience to justify his thesis that politicians have usually treated the symptoms of terrorism rather than the disease.

Even then, it was only the killing of Lord Mountbatten, in 1979, which provided the climate of opinion in the United States for a proper crack-down on Noraid. In the early 1970s Noraid supplied more than 50pc of the cash needed by the IRA, according to the author, but of the 1985 budget of more than £4m, less than £135,000 is received from the US.

Even in terms of arms smuggling, Noraid has a bigger reputation than is justified. From 1963 to 1983 the security forces captured 2,800 weapons believed to have come from America, compared with a total haul of 8,000.

The FBI had adopted a neutralist position towards the organisation, but after Mountbatten, there was an agreement to follow up any leads from British intelligence. They set up a six-man squad, whose sole job was to monitor known Irish-American activists and interrupt the flow of arms and illegal cash.

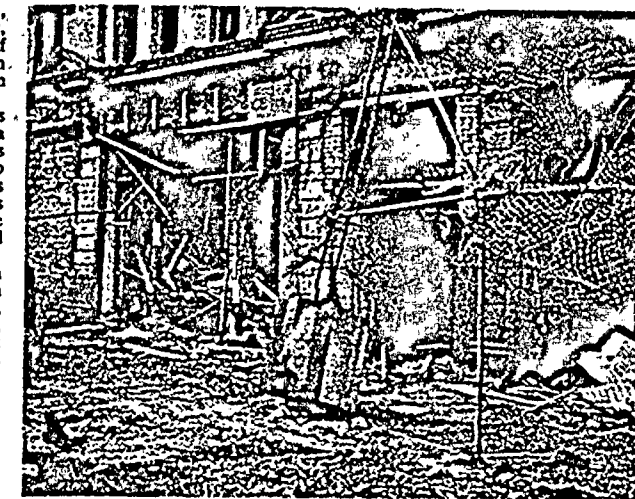

Revealing

George DeMeo, a bearded and bespectacled Corsican, who owned a New York gunshop, was the key figure in setting up the first "sting" operation — code-named Operation Bushmill — which netted several big Noraid fish, including veteran Michael Flannery. But they escaped when the jury accepted the defence line that Noraid thought DeMeo was a CIA agent, and they were working for the US government!

The next sting, Operation Hit and Win, was more successful. The IRA wanted surface-to-air missiles, and their contacts with a bogus arms dealer were videoed — including a meeting in New Orleans above a bar when they were talked out of test-firing a silenced machine-gun into a pile of phone books, in case of injury to the customers below.

The capture of the Manta Ann arms, off the Kerry coast, was another intelligence coup, helped by the tracking of a Boston trawler by a CIA satellite. Following this success, and other cases brought by the FBI, Noraid could no longer deny its connection with arms smuggling, and its star went into a sudden decline, just as it had seemed to be on the verge of making a major impact on the American political process.

Adams describes the anti-Noraid campaign as "the first and best illustration of co-ordinated

Modern terrorism is expensive. How is the money raised? BARRY WHITE has been reading a new book, The Financing of Terror, by a former Middle East expert, now defence correspondent with the Sunday Times international moves that concentrate on the financing of terrorism" — having more impact than many years of counter-terrorism. Nevertheless, he concludes that Britain has learned little, as the IRA developed from a bunch of hoodlums into a wealthy and relatively sophisticated terrorist organisation.

The chapter on the IRA mafia is very revealing about the paramilitaries' expansion into smuggling, politics, tax exemption frauds, security frauds, drinking clubs, gaming and black taxis. But it is the slow and inadequate response of the authorities to each shift of terrorist policy that is so alarming.

A senior NIO official is quoted as saying it has been "extremely difficult to deal with the police". In one instance, the RUC had estimated that a racket was turning over £10m a year, but intelligence reckoned on £130,000, and the NIO figure was even lower. "We find their figures are often in cloud cuckoo land," he said.

In a memorandum dated September 1981, the British army officer responsible for border security set out the problems of countering the IRA in the area, and they are just as relevant today. In essence, he was saying that if the authorities ignore the sources of income to the terrorist, the problem will grow in direct relation to the terrorist's ability to exploit society to his financial benefit.

In other words, when the general public can see that the terrorist community grows and prospers illegally and the law enforcement agencies fail to prevent them, they are inevitably led to consider the terrorists as the more powerful influence in their lives. If this is true along the border, it is equally true in west Belfast.

The officer felt soldiers would be better employed on a specific anti-smuggling operation with a good chance of success than on a conventional operation dependent on good luck. Co-operation would achieve three things — the terrorist community would come under pressure and eventually make a mistake; the public would be pleased to see the leeches on society being harassed; and the government, by showing its will to enforce the rule of law, would restore confidence and normality.

Denials

Perhaps the establishment of a separate "border brigade" signifies a new approach, but the 1981 recommendation for a regional co-ordinator to oversee a common strategy of counter-terrorism remains unacted upon. The author puts this down to the Army's reluctance to get involved in the political battle, but declares that "the unwillingness to grasp this particular nettle must be partially responsible for the inexorable rise in the power and wealth of the IRA".

That power and wealth is directed at achieving political change, and here, writing in 1985, Adams is perhaps a little too pessimistic. The rise and rise of Sinn Fein has apparently been halted, and there must be high hopes that the tension between the hawks and doves, over distribution of funds, will weaken the party's effectiveness.

Government sources apparently estimate that the movement needs three times as much money to support the political campaign as it does to keep the IRA going. The 1983 election campaign was reckoned to have cost £137,000, or £1.30 a vote — gathered by a variety of illegal means.

The author is able to claim, with no equivocation, that the Northern Command of the IRA issued instructions in early 1981 to all active service units to raise funds by every possible method to pay for the forthcoming elections, leaving the interpretation to local commanders. A wave of kidnappings followed, and Adams claims — contrary to police and IRA denials — that £750,000 was obtained in one. The Irish Government's speedy action, in February 1985, to seize over £2m in a Bank of Ireland account in the Republic suggests that even threats were effective, once the IRA's capacity had been proved.

Even today, the IRA link with Shergar is disputed, but Adams is in no doubt. Police, he says are now convinced that the same IRA team was involved in the Shergar, Tidey and Weston attacks, and that its leader — from Tyrone — now lives in Dublin.

He was demoted, after a meeting of the Army Council in which it was revealed that the horse had first been handed in to Co Meath to "farmers from the north who were sympathetic to the cause". When negotiations began to go sour — because of poor communications between the Irish and the French, and impossible demands for cash in notes were not made, Shergar was transferred to south Armagh. Finally, he was moved to Ballinamore and shot.

The problem with all books about Ireland is that they date so quickly, and Adams has omitted to carry out any revision. Contrary to his forecast, the law permitting extradition of wanted IRA suspects from America to the United Kingdom was passed.

He is correct to warn readers that for the British to leave the north before the IRA is defeated — something which elsewhere he dismisses as a possibility — would almost certainly lead to a civil war in the north which would inevitably engulf the south. But "political and security assessments" which tell him that the Protestants would be forced to march south on Dublin, taking the city and establishing a Protestant, not a Catholic, united Ireland are hardly worth recording.

Quietly

Nevertheless his conclusion that politicians are unwilling or unable to respond quickly enough to changing terrorist operations is hardly disputable. Year after year, he says, the government has insisted on using head counts as a criterion for judging the success of counter-terrorism, while the IRA has been quietly strengthening its position.

"If it is allowed free rein to build a strong financial base, it will be able to advance politically," he writes. "In crude terms, money buys votes and as the IRA have learned, the combination of the bullet and the ballot is a very important one."

The IRA has moved on, while counter-terrorism has remained stuck in the same rut. New American-style laws, designed to hit racketeers where it hurts most — in their wallets — are badly needed. They are now under consideration, but by the time politicians put them in place, the problem may have taken a new turn for the worse.

NY T-2 has advised that [REDACTED] resided at the residence of [REDACTED] from mid-October, 1987 until his departure from the US on January 22, 1988. [REDACTED] assisted [REDACTED] in arranging travel and PIRA fund raising activities throughout the US.

NY T-3 has advised that [REDACTED] travel to the US was directly for the purpose of conducting PIRA fund raising activities. The method [REDACTED] utilized was to speak at various Noraid and Clan Na Gael (Clan) functions attended by strong supporters of the Republican movement. This source advised that [REDACTED] activities were directly related to attempt to negate the Republican Sinn Fein (RSF) fund raising activities of [REDACTED]. Source has reported that [REDACTED] had been in contact with Noraid founder Michael Flannery and Flannery has voiced support for RSF publicly. [REDACTED] also met with Flannery to attempt to maintain Flannery's support for Provisional Sinn Fein (PSF)/PIRA and Noraid.

On December 9, 1987 NY T-4 advised that [REDACTED] fund raising activities in the US have been extremely successful. Asset was not in a position to advise a dollar amount, however, has received reliable information that [REDACTED] collected more money for the PIRA than Joseph Cahill and [REDACTED] in 1984 during their PIRA fund raising trip in the US.

NY T-1 has advised that [REDACTED] (last name unknown - LNU) residence at [REDACTED] Belfast, Northern Ireland was searched by the British Army (dates unknown but believed early December, 1987). While this search did not reveal any evidence it caused considerable damage to the residence. Asset advised that this incident received considerable publicity in An Pho Blac (PIRA) newspaper. [REDACTED] allegedly visited [REDACTED] LNU following this incident which was also publicized.

b7C

NY T-2 has advised that [REDACTED] was a close friend of PIRA member [REDACTED] and as of mid-December, 1987 [REDACTED] had not yet met with Currie but plans were tentatively set to do so.

NY T-2 and NY T-3 advised that while in San Francisco, California conduct PIRA fund raising activities [REDACTED] resided with [REDACTED]. Information received from NY T-2 indicates that [REDACTED] also assisted Joseph Cahill and [REDACTED] both supra, in their activities in 1982.

NY T-5 and NY T-6 have advised that [REDACTED] clearly indicated at the various fund raising functions that he was soliciting money expressly for the PIRA. These sources reported that the collection activities consisted almost exclusively of cash donations.

b7C

NY T-5 advised that [REDACTED] conducted several, at least three, fund raising functions at the Breffni Inn, Queens, NY. This location is [REDACTED] [REDACTED], white male, D/POB [REDACTED] in County Tyrone, Northern Ireland. These functions, as were all of the fund raisers, were only open to trusted Noraid/PIRA/Clan supporters.

NY T-4 advised that when [REDACTED] was in the Boston, Massachusetts area he met with [REDACTED]. Source was unable to comment as to the context of this meeting but did note that [REDACTED] obviously were well known to each other. Source commented that this meeting could have been purely social in nature.

On January 21, 1988 NY T-2 advised that [REDACTED] was in contact with [REDACTED] (phonetic). They discussed many mutual friends in Ireland and from the context of the meeting [REDACTED] was involved in PIRA activities in Ireland. [REDACTED] currently resides in the New York area.

On January 22, 1988 [REDACTED] departed the US via Aer Lingus flight 104 to Shannon, ROI. He was afforded a negative US Customs (USC) exit examination to attempt to locate any funds being transported back to Ireland. Several individuals who were traveling on this same flight who were observed in contact with [REDACTED] or acting in an uncommon manor were also afforded negative USC examinations. These individuals are identified as follows:

The normal course of events would be for [redacted] to advise captioned subject that an individual was traveling to Ireland and thereafter to make arrangements for [redacted] to meet with this individual to provide the items for transportation. It is further noted that prior to [redacted] boarding the flight she inquired of Aer Lingus officials if USC was conducting exit examinations which is a highly unusual occurrence. It is noted that [redacted] had in her possession $2,900 in US currency. An investigation has been initiated concerning [redacted] to determine if she is involved in PIRA/Noraid activities.

FBI NEW YORK COMMENT:

As has been reported above and also by published interviews/comments made by [redacted] he was in the US on a PIRA fund raising tour. From information available from several confidential and reliable sources, [redacted] fund raising efforts were extremely successful. Sources have reported that while [redacted] was extremely clandestine about revealing the amounts of money collected, even to [redacted] that they were "considerable". Sources were in a position to report the specific amounts collected at two "small" fund raising functions and at each of these $15,000 was collected. Sources have reported that the total amount of money collected by [redacted] range from $250,000 to $500,000. Sources base their estimates on comments made directly to them (not by [redacted] from individuals who eluded to having knowledge of the collections made at several of the functions. Gentlemen:

RE: Exemption From Franchise Tax

It is the opinion of this office, based upon the evidence presented, that you are exempt from State franchise tax under the provisions of Section 23701 of the Revenue and Taxation Code, as it is shown that you are organized and operated exclusively as a local Association of employees

b6

Accordingly, you will not be required to file franchise tax returns unless you change the character of your organization, the purposes for which you were organized, or your method of operation. Any such changes should be reported immediately to this office in order that their effect upon your exempt status may be determined.

You will, however, be required to file an information return Form 199 annually. This return is due on or before the 15th day of the fifth month following the close of your annual accounting period. You are excused from filing the return if your gross income is under $25,000, in which event you are required to file annually, on or before March 15th, a statement on Form FT-99. These forms will be mailed to you providing this Board is furnished with your current postal address.

If the organization is not yet incorporated or has not yet qualified to do business in California, this approval will expire within thirty days unless incorporation or qualification is completed within such period.

Very truly yours

Arizona INA

The Phoenix and Tucson units of Irish Northern Aid hosted a rally for Irish political prisoner, Joseph Doherty, at the Dubliner Bar in Phoenix, through the courtesy of pub owner Seamus McCaffrey. Most petitions requesting Joe's release on bail from the Metropolitan Correctional Center in Manhattan will have been sent to New York by this time. However, it is urged that the circulators continue to gather signatures even after the 18th. Pressure on Attorney General Edwin Meese to uphold the laws and Constitution of the United States is important.

Also, due to the nature of these petitions (one need not be a registered voter to sign), children are also permitted to sign their names as citizens of the United States.

Petitions were to be made available at the Dubliner for rally participants' signatures.

TUCSON INA

Recently, Gerry Coleman, Publicity and Information Chairman for Doors of Hope, went to Tucson to speak on behalf of the organization and to help the Tucson group raise money for the self-help initiatives in the north of Ireland.

A video of Fr. Des Wilson was shown, along with many of Gerry's personal slides, to a group of Tucsonans that included not only the Irish and Hispanic communities, but the business community as well. Also in attendance was Mr. Bruce Wheeler, a newly elected member of the Tucson City Council, and his top aid, Mr.

Professor Gerry Coleman

Scott Egan, member and past president of INA Tucson.

Gerry's visit generated much interest in the community from some who until learning of Doors of Hope, thought of the north of Ireland as a grim and desperate place without a shred of hope. Encouraged by the information regarding Springhill Community Center and the Conway Street Mill Education Center in Belfast, and Dove House in Derry City, these Tucsonans walked away from this event with a better understanding of the situation in the north.

Another equally important outgrowth of Gerry's visit to Tucson arose from his meeting with State Representative Reid Ewing, which sparked a serious interest in the implementation of MacBride Principles here in Arizona. Mr. Ewing announced on Saturday, June 11th, that he would be a candidate for the State Senate seat currently held by Republican John Mawhinney, an ultra conservative. If Ewing is successful in his campaign, he will represent a very important swing vote in the state legislature and thus be in a good position to help sponsor a MacBride Bill at the state level. Anyone wishing to contribute to Mr. Ewing's campaign can send a check made payable to Ewing '88 Campaign to the following address: Lyn Mandelberg, 1602 E. Greenlee, Tucson, AZ. 85719. Help get the wrong people out and the right people in!

[REDACTED] Albany, New York, telephone [REDACTED] was interviewed at the offices of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in the presence of his Attorney, [REDACTED]. After being advised of the identity of the interviewing Agents and the nature of the interview, [REDACTED] furnished the following information:

[REDACTED] became acquainted with DAMIAN MC CLINTON in the year to year in a half that MC CLINTON was affiliated with the Rochester Chapter of Irish Northern Aid (INAC). MC CLINTON, who was originally from Belfast, Northern Ireland, was employed as a security guard for Genesee Brewing Company in the Rochester, New York area. During the time he was involved with INAC, MC CLINTON rose within the ranks to coordinator of the Rochester Chapter. He enjoyed a fine reputation, was a pleasure to work with, and did not have or make any real adversaries. MC CLINTON, along with [REDACTED] were relieved of their duties because MC CLINTON introduced [REDACTED] a member of the Royal Ulster Constabulary to an unidentified Irish Nationalist who was legally visiting the United States. The Irish Nationalist, who was part of a group known as "Silent Too Long", and his family were put in grave danger of their lives upon return to Northern Ireland.
As a result of their irresponsible behavior, the decision was made by [REDACTED] members of the Executive Council, Irish Northern Aid Committee to replace MC CLINTON and [REDACTED] as coordinators and revoke their membership in INAC altogether. Since that time, [REDACTED] has not had any contact with MC CLINTON.

b6
b7C

Following his dismissal from INAC, MC CLINTON purchased a new home and seemed to enjoy an increase in his financial capabilities. The Irish community, to include [REDACTED] and other members of INAC, attributed MC CLINTON's sudden increase in wealth as well as his death to his involvement in the distribution of illegal drugs.

Belfast March Tour

The dates for the 1989 Belfast tour have now been set. Assembly will be in Dublin on Saturday, August 5th at 12 noon. The tour will conclude in Dublin on Monday, August 14th.

A fee of $275 will cover lodging, meals and transportation beginning in Dublin. Airfare to Ireland must be arranged separately.

The sixth annual "Belfast March Tour" of the British ruled portion of Ireland will provide those with a serious interest in Ireland's conflict an opportunity to see and judge for themselves the realities of life under British rule for unwilling Irish subjects. The tour has become a major international news event which has had a lasting impact on tour nent local members of Sinn Fein. The commentaries will focus on the implications of local conditions within the broader context of events throughout the north. There will be educational workshops, entailing in-depth analysis and discussion of the current conflict and approaches to peace.

One of the major benefits of the tour in the past stems from tour members being housed with local families in each area. These arrangements have afforded tour members an opportunity to see the six counties from the perspective of ordinary nationalist people. Such arrangements have also led to the formation of lasting friendships.

Prominent Sinn Fein leaders including Gerry Adams MP, standing the Irish conflict is welcome. In the past three years a number of Irish Northern Aid members, Ancient Order of Hibernian members, Unity Conference members and members of other organizations have joined with college students, politicians, labor leaders and others not affiliated with any groups. The specific wish is to have the broadest range of people possible.

This year's participants may include friends from Canada and Australia, and there will be opportunities to meet the Troops Out delegation, visiting from Britain

The tour has been an unforgettable experience for anyone who has participated. It has had a major impact on nationalists, as well as participants.

The 1989 tour will coincide with the 20th anniversary of the redeployment of British troops throughout the north. The highlight of the tour will be participation in an Internment Day rally in Belfast.

Each day will include tours of nationalist areas, along with a commentary provided by promi-

Martin McGuinness, Tom Hartley, Danny Morrison, Jim McAllister, Martha McClelland, Joseph Austin, Mitchel McLaughlin, Denis Donaldson and others are expected to address the delegation.

The tour is not restricted to people of any particular political viewpoint or members of any particular organization. Any one with genuine interest in under-tour participants. Spaces are limited and first-timers, elected official and representatives of prominent organizations will be given preference. If you wish to be on the mailing list, please write today to the Irish People, 4951 Broadway, New York, NY 10034.

rise again. Slipping furtively into Ireland the next year with the task of leading Ulster in rebellion, he was left without support after Robert Emmet's failure in the Dublin rising. This famous ballad by Florence Wilson tells of Russell's stop for a night at Andy Lemon's Inn in Killyleagh, County Down. The inn was full of United-men. They did not know who he was neither was Russell aware of their sentiments. On October 21, 1803, Russell was captured and then hanged at the county jail in Downpatrick. Mary Ann McCracken would raise his gravestone in the local Protestant cemetery; it bore the simple inscription: "The Grave of Russell."

Chicago

Chicago Supporters

St. Patrick's Day in Chicago was anything but a fine day for a parade. The freezing rain, the high wind, and the marble-sized hail all contributed to both shivering participants and shivering spectators. However, this did not deter a great turnout, and many became oblivious to the bitter conditions in their enthusiastic support for Joe Doherty's freedom.

As both floats and groups supporting Joe Doherty marched down Dearborn Street, observers along the route spontaneously and repeatedly shouted, "Let Joe Go, Let Joe Go" in overwhelming numbers. One float by the friends of Joe Doherty drew the biggest response. It depicted a small jail cell, a blow-up picture of Joe, and clear statements to the United States government to "Free Joe Doherty" and "Political Asylum Does Not Mean Solitary Confinement—Free Doherty Now."

The enthusiastic support for Joe then began to generate a sizable crowd in the Federal Plaza, composed of both parade participants and spectators. All were demanding Joe's freedom with a continuous chant, "Let Joe Go, Let Joe Go."

BORN TO EMIGRATE

A CONFERENCE in Falcarragh, County Donegal, was told on Saturday that the number of people emigrating last year was equal to half the birthrate. Among the 70 people who attended the conference in the Gaeltacht town were many speakers who condemned the Dublin government's active encouragement of emigration.

Paul Corrigan, Sinn Féin councillor on Fermanagh UDC concentrated on the effects of emigration in North West Ireland and on attempts made by his council to create jobs. The area suffers from a very high emigration rate and a recent GAA survey of eleven clubs showed that 189 active players have emigrated over the past two years. Around 115 miles of the border of County Fermanagh runs along the division between the Six and the 26 Counties and the potential of the area is seriously damaged by being cut off from its natural hinterland: "it cannot attain its full development until the British presence is removed" said Corrigan.

Health Forum in London detailed the effects of emigration, racism and colonialism which lead to Irish people in England being two and a half times more likely to need psychiatric treatment than the national average.

"The 26-County politician holding out the one month's dole money to encourage people to emigrate is the mirror image of

Speaking of economic underdevelopment and 1992 Raymond Crotty, the agricultural economist referred to the "50-30-20 factor": 50% youth emigration, 30% living below the poverty line, and 20% living in the inner city.

INA Newsletter

No.1

FAIRTE

Welcome to the first issue of the INA Newsletter! The National Executive of Irish Northern Aid reckons it's time for all units and members to be aware of what the organization is doing at National level, so that you will know better what you can be doing at local level. INA is approaching the 20th anniversary of its foundation and there's an urgent need for increased commitment to mark the occasion. The success or failure of INA in the months and years ahead will be measured on your ability to deliver on the financial, publicity and lobbying requirements which will be made of you in the future. This newsletter should be used as a forum for internal information as well as discussion. If your unit feels that it has a good idea that the national organization should know about, then write or phone us about it! Meanwhile, keep up the good work.

FUNDRAISING

In the months ahead the National Executive will be reviewing the activity of each unit in raising finance. On the basis of that review, targets will be set for your unit and all units, so be prepared.

If your unit has plans to hold fundraising events in the weeks and months ahead, (and it should have), please send details to National Office and to the Irish People, with an advert if possible. This will enable National Finance Director, Ciaran Staunton, to produce a fundraising information leaflet, which units will find useful in planning for the future.

Units are also asked to send in a report of each event when it is over, detailing money raised, i.e. whether through door receipts, raffle tickets or sale of merchandise. Thank you for your cooperation.

PUBLICITY

Is your unit getting the message across to the people of your area or State, or is British propaganda winning hands down? After 20 years of British military failure, INA needs to go on the offensive and dictate the terms of the debate on Ireland in a way that the American public can understand and sympathize with. The IRA is not the problem, British colonial interference is. The denial of civil and national rights to the Irish people; that is what our publicity should highlight, as well as the abuse of the American judiciary and taxpayer's money by Britain. There are several issues here in the United States through which we can highlight aspects of British injustice. Amongst these are:

(1) The MacBride Principles campaign....Eleven states have now adopted this fair employment legislation and others are pending. The campaign has raised the inherently discriminatory nature of the British-ruled 6 Counties and continues to be a major source of embarrassment to the British, forcing them to divert tens of millions of dollars to trying to stop the campaign.

(2) The International Fund for Ireland (IFI).... This issue concerns the abuse of American taxpayers money to uphold sectarian bias and political discrimination in the North of Ireland. The objective of the Irish-American organizations is to get an inquiry into how the money has been allocated since the IFI began. On a wider level INA believes that any financial aid package that is tied to an unjust agreement, as IFI is tied to the Hillsborough Deal, will never be able to solve the economic problems of the Six Counties. A Congressional hearing on the IFI was held on Wednesday, April 26th and INA along with the other major Irish-American groups, was represented by Professor Gerry Coleman of New Jersey. He has asked that there be a follow-up in the form of letters and phonecalls to members of Congress urging them to support calls for an inquiry into the IFI.

(3) Visa-denial..... The issue of censorship by denying visas to republican leaders such as Gerry Adams is an issue of the basic right of the American people to hear different viewpoints in a debate. The issue raises the British use of censorship in relation to the debate on Ireland. Visa-denial is being challenged through the courts and in a Congressional challenge to the McCarron/Walter Act. INA leaders, including Jim Maunsell were present at a visa-denial press conference in Boston in April.

(4) Joe Doherty's imprisonment.... This issue presents a clear case of the perversion of the American judicial process because of pressure from Britain. A Congressional Resolution #62 needs to be sponsored by about 200 representatives if its call for the release of Joe Doherty is ever to be debated. At the moment only about 30 co-sponsors have signed it. It is up to each unit to ensure that its elected representatives are contacted by as many people as possible. Time is short, so get to work immediately on this one, particularly if your Congress representative is a member of the Ad-Hoc Committee on Irish Affairs.

REMEMBER, IF YOU NEED FURTHER INFORMATION OR ADVICE ON ANY OF THESE ISSUES OR ON CONTACT NUMBERS FOR YOUR REPRESENTATIVES, CONTACT NATIONAL OFFICE. ALSO, UNITS SHOULD NOTE THAT REQUESTS FOR SPEAKERS AT MAJOR EVENTS SHOULD BE SENT TO PUBLICITY DIRECTOR, MARTIN GALVIN, AT NATIONAL OFFICE.

LOBBYING

The most effective way to get political action on issues of concern to INA is to develop good personal contacts with elected representatives and with human rights groups at local, state and national level. A number of INA activists with ability in this area have already been appointed as state or regional lobbying co-ordinators. If your unit has someone capable of filling this role then contact National Lobbying Director, Paul Murray, by writing or phoning National Office.

Please send details of the political lobbying/ publicity work that your unit has been engaged in over the past year, if possible. If none, please say so. Once again this information will help the Executive to plan for the future by setting realistic goals for units to meet.

IRISH PEOPLE

Each unit is asked to get a minimum of ten new subscribers for the Irish People. All members should, of course, be getting the paper every week. This is important if the paper is to survive and develop in the future. Units are also asked to consider taking out full-page sponsored adverts in the Irish People. These might reflect the theme of the 20th anniversary, paying tribute to retired or deceased activists. In the past you can see this

A New View of Irish at SF Parade

Reprinted from the March 2nd
San Francisco Examiner

by Warren Hinckle

There will be a grand St. Patrick's Day parade in San Francisco this year. The consul, who every year makes a fool of himself by walking off the reviewing stand when 80-year-old Dan McCormick marches by, will not attend at all, which is a definite plus.

The consul is named Brian Nason. He is a tidy man with the mind of a bean counter. Each year he sits on the reviewing stand in front of City Hall and counts the units in the parade until he knows. McCormick is approaching with his fife and drums. Then he turns on his dainty foot as sharply as a guard at the Tower of London and takes a hike.

I have come to admire the broad beam of Nason's backside. This is all I see of the man because every year I march in the parade with McCormick. Every year there are more and more people marching behind him, watching the consul rush off the grandstand like a little boy who doesn't want to play.

By a vote of 60-36 in an open and free democratic election, the United Irish Societies elected McCormick the grand marshal of this year's St. Patrick's parade. McCormick as a lad in Ireland fought the British in the Easter Rising of 1916, and because he has never stopped fighting them in the cause of a 32-county Ireland united and free, his election has disturbed Nason, who has the bloody nerve on the behalf of a government 6,000 miles away in Dublin to tell Irish Americans in San Francisco what to do.

It has also disturbed Herb Caen, that indefatigable promoter of the Jaguar and all things British, who has suggested that McCormick is a "terrorist"—the British line for all those who oppose their devious and devilish ways. George Washington was also a "terrorist" to the Brits. McCormick stands in good company.

The British could never get away with this line in New York or Boston.

Dorothy Hayden Cudahy, the grand marshal of the New York St. Patrick's Day parade, holds opinions of the British similar to those of McCormick, yet the consul in New York dare not turn his back on her. Rep. Joe Kennedy makes the same criticisms of the British "shoot to kill" policy in North Ireland as McCormick, yet journalists in Boston dare not call him a terrorist.

Dan McCormick

This year's parade is the time to spike San Francisco's small-minded, small-town view of the Irish Republican politics of a man such as McCormick—who proudly raises money to send to support the families of Irishmen imprisoned in juryless trials on the basis of "confessions" obtained by simple torture.

In San Francisco, the well-oiled British propagandists smile and call McCormick a terrorist and pour tea in Nason's cup and gasoline in Caen's Jaguar.

McCormick Grand Marshal

Veteran Republican Dan McCormick is to lead the Irish of San Francisco in their St. Patrick's Day parade on March 12th. Dan admits that he didn't want any part of it; but friends persuaded him to let his name go forward for grand marshal.

When it came to a vote between Dan and City Treasurer Mary Callanan, it was Dan who emerged as easy winner. His election as grand marshal will undoubtedly help to build awareness about the freedom struggle in Ireland in the San Francisco area where Dan has spent many years working on behalf of the dependents of political prisoners in Ireland.

Born in Strabane, County Tyrone, Dan grew up in a Republican family. His father was a member of the Volunteers and, although young at the time, Dan remembers helping out in the 1918 and 1920 elections. His only regret was that he was too young to be sworn in as an IRA Volunteer during the Black and Tan War.

Dan emigrated in 1927, first to Scotland, then to Canada and finally to the United States. In 1933 he arrived in San Francisco where he became active in the labor movement. He also remained active in the Irish liberation struggle and throughout the years in various pro-Republican organizations. He was a founder-member of Irish Northern Aid in San Francisco and was honored by the organization at the New York testimonial dinner in 1981.

On September 5, 1988, [REDACTED] departed the United States from JFKIA to Shannon, ROI, aboard AERLINGUS Flight Number 102. He was afforded an exit examination by the FBI and United States Customs with negative results. [REDACTED] declined to make any statements or provide any information as to his purpose in travel to the United States. He provided his Irish Passport Number 805879 in the name of [REDACTED] with the only travel disclosed in the passport being his arrival at JFKIA, on August 8, 1988. [REDACTED] was in possession of a valid B-2 visitor's visa issued January 12, 1979, at Belfast, Northern Ireland.

The following is an assessment of [REDACTED] activities while in the United States:

The NYO of the FBI concurs with your delicate source information that [REDACTED] travel to the United States was to unify the various Republican support groups, specifically NORAIID and Clan Na Gael as evidenced by his meeting with the leadership of both groups detailed above.

Confidential and reliable source information has advised that this was [REDACTED] primary purpose in travel. At least one source has reported that [REDACTED] authority was "supreme" to the extent that [REDACTED] could have discontinued either organization if that group was not conducive to adhering to [REDACTED] directives.

One source reported that [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] Committee consisting of NORAIID and Clan Na Gael leadership which would be responsible for the overall fund-raising activities of Republican support groups in the United States. It was also suggested that NORAIID and Clan Na Gael mutually sponsor fund-raising events. This has occurred on at least one occasion on September 7, 1988. This function was organized by NORAIID [REDACTED] and Clan Na Gael [REDACTED] It was publicly advertised as a joint-NORAIID/Clan Na Gael function.

b6
b7D

From various sensitive source information, it does not appear that this alignment of NORAIID and Clan Na Gael is progressing to any great degree. Information has been received that both organizations continue to maintain their autonomy, as far as fund-raising functions. Members of NORAIID, specifically known to be [REDACTED] have at least been attending Clan Na Gael meetings. [REDACTED] has voiced some dissatisfaction with [REDACTED] Clan Na Gael participation.

As in the past, Clan Na Gael members will attend NORAIID functions and vice-versa; however, it is the NYO's opinion that this type of activity has not increased or decreased since [REDACTED] travel.

Source coverage of NORAIID activities and personalities seems to indicate that the NORAIID [REDACTED] had not received a report of [REDACTED] travel to the United States until probably early December, 1988. This consisted of the travel of the NORAIID leadership to Dublin, ROI, in December, 1988. (Detailed in prior communications) to meet with Provisional Sinn Fein (PSF)/PIRA leadership. To the New York's Office knowledge, no New York Clan Na Gael leaders were invited to this meeting, and it is unknown if any United States Clan Na Gael members attended. New York Clan Na Gael [REDACTED] felt somewhat "slighted" at his lack of an invitation to this meeting in Dublin.

Recent highly sensitive and singular source information indicates that New York Clan Na Gael [REDACTED] will resign from the Clan Na Gael. The reasons being offered are the support of New York Clan Na Gael [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] non-attendance at the December, 1988 Dublin meeting could also be a factor.

Another factor involving [REDACTED] resignation from Clan Na Gael activities could be [REDACTED] belief (either real or perceived) that PIRA/PSF are more supportive of NORAID than Clan Na Gael. While it is well known that PSF/PIRA will accept funds from any source, the various Republican support groups in the United States tend to overlap, and in some cases, negate each other's actions and "cut into" monies collected by one group or another. For example, if NORAID runs a raffle, fund-raiser, or benefit, it is usually widely advertised. Should Clan Na Gael, or Tyrone Society or Ancient Order Of Hibernians (AOH) etc., run another function, both groups will have some negative effects, i.e. decreased attendance and/or donations. Since NORAID is well established and organized nationally, these effects would be less with them than a group such as the Tyrone Society or Corkman's Association. If the purpose of [REDACTED] travel was to unify the various groups, one of the most effective means would be to have NORAID organize the respective groups and thereby have NORAID in some control over the finances. This could alleviate the various difficulties encountered by the different Republican support groups in collecting and sending funds back to Ireland. PFS/PIRA headquarters would, thereafter, have the control of all the money collected in the United States and the disbursement of same. NORAID has historically been effective in providing funds to the PIRA/PFS and could be depended upon to continue this roll.

/ It has also come to our recent attention (January, 1989) from sensitive and reliable sources that PSF/PIRA in Dublin are recommending/suggesting additional means for NORAID to raise funds. It has been learned that PIRA [REDACTED] has made arrangements for NORAID to obtain two master video tapes, one made by the "Repatriation Committee" and one by the "68 Committee". NORAID has been directed to duplicate and sell these tapes and return $6.00 for each tape sold to PFS/PIRA headquarters. While this is not the first such incidence of PFS/PIRA direction of NORAID fund-raising, it should be viewed in the context of the above factors.

the behest of the British. Fr. Ryan is expected to begin a hunger and thirst strike rather than face a trial.

Brown also mentioned the effects of Section 31 censorship, and said that many Americans know more about the situation in the north than do the Irish in the 26 counties. He attributed the problem of emigration to Dublin's spending so much on the border and so little on jobs.

Harrison Goldin, New York City Comptroller, reported on the MacBride Principles campaign, which has resulted in laws in ten states and a dozen cities. He said that recent British legislation is "simply and clearly unacceptable." It will not slow the MacBride campaign momentum, but merely shows Britain's disposition for cosmetic measures. The new British law could make illegal pledges made by Shorts to the United States military.

Mario Biaggi talked of the advances, the new awareness and the unprecedented Irish-American political clout on the issue of the north. He expressed satisfaction and confidence in

More than 1,100 persons, including elected officials, labor leaders and prominent heads of Irish-American organizations attended Irish Northern Aid's annual Testimonial Dinner last Friday. The main speaker, Mrs. Mairead Farrell of Belfast, in a moving address, spoke of her daughter's murder by British Special Air Services (SAS) troops in Gibraltar last March.

Other highlights included an emotional speech by former Congressman Mario Biaggi on the future of the Ad Hoc Congressional Committee in Washington, and a speech by New York Comptroller Harrison Goldin, wherein he castigated the latest British legislation intended to slow the MacBride Principles campaign against British sectarianism.

Sinn Fein Councillor Michael Brown spoke about the plight of Fr. Patrick Ryan.

The guest speaker from Ireland, Mrs. Mairead Farrell, was visibly overcome by emotion as she spoke of her daughter's murder by SAS troopers in Gibraltar. Her daughter, also named Mairead Farrell, as well as Daniel McCann and Sean Savage, was murdered from behind. Each was unarmed.

The murders were followed by a coverup in the British Parliament, the British press, and by restrictions in the inquest. Witnesses were vilified and labeled. Lies appeared in the news accounts, apparently disseminated by the government, and then simply discarded when proven untrue.

When the bodies were returned to Ireland, they were hijacked by the British Army and driven through Loyalist areas. Mourners were jeered and stoned. Friends were not permitted to pay final respects.

The funeral services were attacked with apparent collusion with the British crown and three mourners murdered. The crown only intervened after the crowd had courageously captured the Loyalist murderer.

Mairead's death was the culmination of a lifetime of heroic work and struggle for her country's freedom. She had fought British occupation, been imprisoned for more than a decade, and immediately re-enlisted upon her release.

Mrs. Farrell also talked about the desperate need for American political pressure and the grave need for financial aid for Irish political prisoners. She noted the censorship of the Dublin government which is designed to conceal the true situation in the six counties from fellow Irishmen and women in the south.

Sinn Fein Councillor Michael Brown spoke about the strong likelihood that Fr. Patrick Ryan would be charged by Dublin at MAIREAD Farrell, mother of one of the three members of the IRA who were killed by the SAS in Gibraltar last March, was the main guest speaker at the 17th annual testimonial banquet of Irish Northern Aid held in Queens, New York on Friday, January 20.

Over 1,000 people, each of whom paid $45 for tickets to the dinner, gave her a standing ovation when she told them to "keep up the support — for things are worse now than they ever were."

The attendance also gave similar welcomes to Mario Biaggi, the former congressman, who is still fighting a jail term for convictions on bribery and corruption charges and to Noraid founder, Michael Flannery.

Three possible contenders for the mayoralty of New York also attended the gathering: City Council President Andrew Stein; Special Prosecutor Charles Hynes and City Comptroller Harrison J. Goldin.

Sinn Fein Urges Noraid Changes

BY PATRICK FARRELLY

A MAJOR change in direction for Irish Northern Aid is underway following a secret meeting in Dublin between top Noraid organizers and Sinn Fein, the political wing of the IRA.

At the meeting, a number of changes in political strategy—including targeting new immigrants and building a broader political base in the United States—were urged by the Sinn Fein representatives, led by West Belfast MP Gerry Adams.

Last year Sinn Fein sent two members to the U.S. to carry out a major study of Noraid, the Republican support group. They spent over three months examining Noraid activities. On their return to Ireland they wrote a report for the Republican leadership that, according to a Sinn Fein source in Ireland, was critical of many aspects of Noraid's organization.

One of the most immediate changes sought by Sinn Fein is that Noraid increase its appeal to recent immigrants. As a first step, it was suggested to Noraid that they should employ full-time organizers to help recruit more young personnel.

Also at the meeting, it was put to the Noraid representatives that the organization needed to develop a broader political base. Sinn Fein have been dissatisfied with what they see as Noraid's inability to effectively relate to progressive political movements in the U.S. They have felt for some time that the Irish question in the U.S. should become part of the progressive political agenda alongside Central America and South Africa.

At the meeting which was held the first week in December at Sinn Fein offices in Dublin were 20 top-ranking representatives of Noraid including publicity director Martin Galvin, and national executive members Jim Maunsell and Pat O'Connell.

A Sinn Fein spokesman downplayed the significance of the meeting. He told the 'Irish Voice' that it was held to "re-assess and review Noraid activities." He said that Sinn Fein would "certainly be looking for a more comprehensive campaign for Irish self-determination and against British military oppression from Noraid." He added that a more political profile on the part of Noraid was part of "an ongoing development."

In an interview with the 'Irish Voice' Noraid publicity director Martin Galvin said the the Dublin meeting was as "important as the last meeting we held with Sinn Fein." He denied that the Sinn Fein report on Noraid was critical of the organization.

Over a thousand supporters of Noraid gather this weekend for their annual banquet at the Astorian Manor in Queens, New York. The banquet will be attended by two surprise guests, Daniel and Mairead Farrell, parents of Mairead Farrell, who was shot dead along with two other IRA members by the SAS in Gibraltar last March.

The changes that Sinn Fein urged on Noraid are an indication of what has been happening within Sinn Fein itself since the 1981 hungerstrike. The organization has become increasingly radical. In Britain it has consciously aligned itself with the left of the British Labor Party and its trade union allies. That strategy has produced real political gains for Sinn Fein.

In the past the Republican movement looked primarily to the U.S. as a source of funds and arms. In recent years the U.S. has receded in importance as a source of arms. This has resulted from two developments; there has been increasing cooperation between U.S. authorities and the British and Irish security forces has made shipments of arms from the U.S. very risky. At the same time the IRA has gained more reliable outlets in Libya and Europe.

While Sinn Fein see the U.S. as an important source of money to support the many dependants of IRA prisoners, they also see the U.S. as a key battleground in the propaganda war against Britain. In this area they are highly critical of Noraid's performance.

Sinn Fein see the success of the MacBride Principles campaign as an indication of the potential of political initiatives in America. They have been impressed with the success of the campaign and the enormous difficulty it has caused for the British government.

On Sunday, March 6, 1988 at 3:30 p.m. local time, six British soldiers of the unorthodox 22nd Special Air Services (SAS) regiment shot and killed three young Asset further advised that some of the other factors influencing [REDACTED] decision to quit his position as Clan Na Gael [REDACTED] is ill health, [REDACTED] involvement in the County Tyrone Society, and pressing business needs.

[REDACTED] decision to resign has also been influenced by his affiliation with [REDACTED] in the County Tyrone Society and [REDACTED] allegiance to [REDACTED]

Asset advised that the Clan Na Gael leadership in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania is also changing in that Clan Na Gael Philadelphia [REDACTED] is also resigning his position. Asset stated that [REDACTED] resignation is due more in part to allegations that he is misappropriating Clan Na Gael funds. [REDACTED] resignation has been requested by Philadelphia Clan Na Gael [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] has advised that the relationship between Clan Na Gael and Noraid (OO: NYfile 199F-1564) remained good. Irish Americans Denounce Charles Haughey

The extradition of Robert Russell into the hands of the British was widely condemned by Irish Americans and by the leading Irish American organizations.

A crowd demonstrated at New York's Free State Consulate last Saturday after the extradition had been completed.

Martin Galvin of Irish Northern Aid in addressing the rally said that "Robert Russell is an Irishman who grew up amidst British oppression in northeast Ireland. He saw sectarian discrimination, the terror of British crown forces, the inhuman treatment within the H blocks of Long Kesh and chose, as have so many Irish patriots, to resist British occupation of part of his country.

"He was more entitled to expect political sanctuary from fellow Irish citizens after fighting British rule and escaping from a British prison than Fianna Fail founder Eamon de Valera, when he arrived in the United States after opposing British rule and escaping from

Hibernian Statement

Describing the extradition as "an act of cowardice not worthy of a sovereign nation," Michael Coogan, national president of the AOH, stated, "It is inconceivable that any Irish citizen—no matter what he or she may be accused of—could be turned over to a nation with such a track record of treachery in Ireland." Is the Irish system of justice so inadequate that its citizens cannot be tried instead of being handed over to an oppressor whose violence and injustice against the Irish people seems never to end?"

"Like Pontius Pilate," Coogan continued, "the Dublin government tries to wash its hands of freedom and those who yearn to be free but with every act of co-operation promotes the very violence it claims to abhor." This act is all the more shocking because in three years of the Hillsborough Deal there has not been one action by England that would justify the slightest confidence in British justice and plenty of actions to a British prison.

Mr. Galvin urged Irish Americans to recognize that Fianna Fail has forfeited any credible aim to being a republican party or reminded them that our campaign must be doubled if we are to prove its malevolence, including the death of Aidan McAneaspie, the Birmingham Six and Guildford Four, the Stalker scandal, the release of Ian Thain, etc...."

On Tuesday afternoon the prisoner appeared in Lurgan Magistrates' Court where the charges were read out to him. All date back to 1979 when he was 16 years old and relate to possession of a shotgun and petrol-bombings in the town in November and December of that year. He was remanded in custody to appear in Crumlin Road Courthouse on Friday, August 26th.

Gerry Harte served a sentence as a Republican prisoner in Portlaoise from 1982 to 1986. In 1979 he had been arrested and charged with petrol-bombing in Lurgan, but he never stood trial as he escaped from juvenile detention and found refuge in the 26 counties. The first warrant was issued in the 26 counties (membership in Fianna Eireann) and was returned.

Defective Warrants

The RUC sent more warrants in July 1986, a month before, Harte was due for release. These were also defective and were returned with legal queries just two days before the release date. The next day the RUC sent ten new warrants and five of these were backed by the 26-county authorities. When Harte was released from Portlaoise, on August 29, 1986, he was arrested on the warrants. Portlaoise District Court issued an order for his extradition and he was given the

THOUSANDS FOR

THE CENTRE of Dublin was brought to a standstill for several hours on Saturday last as thousands of people joined the national demonstration against extradition just seven days before Robert Russell was due to be sent back to the Six Counties.

The colourful parade was led by a banner calling for the release of Robert Russell; pictures of 'Goose' and his three fellow prisoners facing extradition — Owen Carron, Paul Kane and Dermot Finucane. These were followed by a display illustrating British trial-by-media with tabloid headlines like Hang Irish Scum, String 'em up. Then came two very special guests. In a dog collar and lead, held by his mistress Margaret Thatcher, was Charles Haughey making suitably cringing gestures as he offered Thatcher a teapot only to be belted with her handbag.

The march swelled to over 4,000 as it went from Parnell Square through O'Connell Street and across the Liffey to St Stephen's Green and the Department of Justice. There, Roslynn Russell handed in a letter to Fianna Fail Justice Minister, Gerry Collins, making a last-minute appeal for the release of her brother. In the course of the letter Roslynn and Jean Russell said:

"Our brother is not a criminal... Robert would not be in prison were it not for his political beliefs and the political situation in the north-east of our country. He was born and grew up in Belfast where his experience of British justice was foreign soldiers on our streets, internment without trial, special courts, armed police, interrogation centres and finally in his own case, the misery of the H-Blocks."

After pausing at the Department of Justice the march with its many banners (including one from the Fianna Fail Anti-Extradition Committee) and contingents from all over Ireland went back through the south-city centre to the GPO. Chairing the rally, Mary Carolan thanked the large crowd for their attendance on behalf of the Irish Anti-Extradition Committee. She introduced the first speaker, Lily Hill; the mother of Paul Hill, one of the Guildford Four. She pointed to the role Haughey and the Fianna Fail government could play in securing the release of the Four as well as the Birmingham Six and other frame-up victims. On the plight of political prisoners she said:

"This is not the life we want for the Irish people. We the relatives suffer with the prisoners. But I don't hear the silent scream of the prisoner in solitary confinement. I don't have to endure the humiliation of strip-searching that our young men and women are forced to endure."

The next speaker was Martin Galvin of Irish Northern Aid. "If they start extraditing for breaking banning orders then I will be extradited myself" began, referring to the Briand women of good conscience everywhere and urge them to continue, for nothing less than the self esteem of Irish people is at stake with every citizen surrendered in this fashion."

Unity Conference Statement

Gerry Coleman of the Irish American Unity Conference asked,

"What has Mr. Haughey gained for the people of Ireland by handing over two more young Irishmen to be devoured by the racial hatred and tyranny that awaits them in British courts?"

"The Irish American Unity Conference is opposed to any extradition arrangement that institutionalizes delivering Irish men and women into British jurisdiction. Americans disgraced ourselves with our own extradition treaty; how much more in disgrace is the present Dublin government after having just consummated this extradition deal with Britain?"

Attorney Paul O'Dwyer termed the extradition of Robert Russell as "outrageous." "This man is being extradited to Britain where on the basis of our experience with the Birmingham 6 we know that he does not have a ghost of a chance of getting a fair trial."

Mr. O'Dwyer is also a long time supporter of Friends of Fianna Fail.

INA At Internment Commemoration Rally

The annual rally commemorating the 17th anniversary of internment took place as scheduled on Sunday, August 14th, in Belfast. Sinn Féin's Martin McGuinness admonished his listeners to be vigilant in facing possible internment and encouraged them to look to the not too distant future when, thanks to the IRA, they would control their own destinies. Visitors from overseas included delegations from Australia, England, Spain and Norway, as well as the delegation from the Irish People's annual Belfast March Tour.

Paul Murray

Paul Murray, leader of the American delegation, addressed the large crowd. He said, "Each year your struggle for freedom continues to make believers out of many more Americans, Americans who are fast learning of the bondage of British rule in Ireland."

"Mayor Koch just found out how fast Americans catch on to the terror of tyranny. The Dublin government should catch on as quick. Poor Mayor Koch sees Dublin turning its citizens over to British thugs and kangaroo courts and he thinks things have changed. They have—things are far worse."

"While more Americans than ever in the history of this long struggle for freedom are demanding British withdrawal from Ireland—

Martin McGuinness

Dublin slips further into the bondage of a deal that is not worth the paper it is printed on. Americans will never understand or accept the Dublin government's dancing hand-in-hand with British army bandits on a border that the Irish Constitution does not recognize. Dublin gave up the right to speak for Aidan McAnespie when it put collaboration before challenge and national honor, when it placed a greater premium on cowardice than on courage.

"Even as the Irish people laid to rest its most honored citizen and distinguished freedom fighter, Sean MacBride, not one word was offered from Dublin as England and its stooges slandered him far and wide. The truth which Dublin must recognize is that England has nothing but contempt for the Irish, living or dead, north or south, unionist or nationalist.

"This, too, must be said. There's not today, nor has there ever been a member of the British government that has the courage and honesty of today's leaders in Sinn Féin.

"We in America are keenly aware of the sacrifices you have made and the oppression you have endured. Internment and imprisonment did not silence you. The murders at Gibraltar and Loughgall will not stop you. And as long as you stand up to British terror, we in America stand with you. Even in our genuine sorrow for the loss of innocent life and the grief shared by all, the only apology owed Maggie Thatcher and her SAS hounds is the one she got at Brighton.

"Twenty years ago this October, Irish men and women got off their knees and demanded human rights and justice. Dublin then said it would not stand idly by as you were burned out of your homes. But that's just what they did. They have been standing idly by ever since. Except when Thatcher asked for a small favor like, extradition.

"Americans provided money then, and will continue to do so as long as the Dublin dandies run for cover and support British terrorism rather than defend its national honor and take back the six occupied counties. Americans have demanded the MacBride Fair Employment Principles and we now can say that nearly every state in the United States has either adopted or has before its legislature MacBride Principles legislation.

"The day Bobby Sands died, American unions closed all American ports to British ships, while Dublin issued condolences.

"When the final chapter of the English captivity of these six ~~months~~ is written, it will be the ~~commitment~~ of Americans and your courage that will have put right the wrong of six decades and end the shame of the last 20 years.

"Dublin should know by now after Stalker, after the Birmingham Six, that the road to hell is paved with 'strongly worded protests' and that the only thing that will wake up Whitehall is the vision of your leaders, Sinn Féin and the bravery of your army, the Irish Republican Army.

"Our presence here today is a symbol of that American resolve to help you get the job done, the business of getting the Brits out of Ireland and allowing all the Irish the right to determine their own government in a 32-county Ireland."

Mr. Murray's remarks were delivered amid widespread fears of the imminent reintroduction of internment. The IRA's recent successes in attacking and inflicting casualties upon British army personnel has caused Unionist leaders to concede that the IRA is winning the war.

In a recent statement to the press, Unionist MP Ken Maginnis stated that the only tactic likely to defeat the IRA is internment. Maginnis noted that a measure of the IRA's impact after nearly 20 years of armed struggle is that the RUC and army are more vulnerable than ever.

Facing the probability of the reintroduction of internment, Sinn Féin president Gerry Adams MP commented: "I've said internment would come since before Hillsborough and it has to be seen in a context: The British have failed to isolate us. When they decide they have failed by repression to isolate republicans, they will intern us. It is amusing to see all the discussion about internment—discussion about the methods of repression, not about the morality of it."

He said that the current situation was remarkably similar to that of August 1971 when internment was introduced.

John Hurley leading the procession in Charlestown.

Protest at B.R.A. Decision

MORE THAN 100 people took part in a silent procession and wreath laying ceremony in Charlestown on Wednesday, August 10 to protest the Boston Redevelopment Authority's (B.R.A.) refusal to dedicate the park at Main and Austin Streets to the memory of John Boyle O'Reilly.

The B.R.A. had originally approved the decision to dedicate the park on August 10 to O'Reilly but they rescinded that approval following the placement of an advertisement by local Charlestown resident John Hurley, president of Boston Irish Northern Aid and president of Friends of John Boyle O'Reilly Inc. The advertisement was placed in the 'Irish Voice' and it attacked a number of prominent public figures in Boston including Mayor Ray Flynn, Frank Costello, Bernard Cardinal Law, and Irish Consul General Brendan Scannell.

The quiet, orderly procession which culminated in a flag raising ceremony was held in defiance of that decision. It was attended by City Councillor Robert Travglini, City Councillor Michael McCormick and Jim Walshe, an aide from Congressman's Joe Kennedy's office.

After the flag raising ceremony, Al Madden, President of the local Ancient Order of Hibernians, denounced the B.R.A.'s actions. Madden's speech, according to Janelle Lawrence, a reporter with the 'Charlestown Ledger,' received loud applause. "The local people," Lawrence said, "feel they are being punished by the mayor and Hurley's dispute. They feel it was a bad policy decision for the mayor.

"The crowd did everything they had planned to do in the original ceremony — except to lay a granite marker saying it was the John Boyle O'Reilly Park." The B.R.A. has no plans to reconsider their controversial decision.

Boyle O'Reilly Controversy in Boston

IN RESPONSE to the B.R.A.'s decision to cancel the dedication of a park in Charlestown, Mass. to the great patriotic Irish American John Boyle O'Reilly I would like to say the following: Director of the B.R.A., Stephen Coyle's remarks about "wrapping (the commemoration) up in political factions" smacks of duplicity indeed.

Almost in the same breath the man hints of how the event may go ahead "if someone connected with the ad. will step aside." If this is not playing politics in itself then will someone please explain to me what it is?

Coyle's statements concerning the author of the ad., which rightly castigates Flynn, Crane, Law and Costello for being apologists for the British, is so wishy-washy that the man does not even have the courage to name the person responsible for the ad. — Mr. John T. Hurley. He signed his name to it, for God's sake!

Even a cursory look at Boston politics concerning the softly-softly approach to the whims of the British on issues of Irish American patriotism/nationalism must leave many of us speechless. I must strongly urge the powers-that-be to show true character — as Mr. Hurley has so many times in the past — and put aside their "kiss me, I'm Irish" politics and let the memorial park event take place with the dignity it deserves.

As Hurley points out, "John Boyle O'Reilly is a bigger man than me or Ray Flynn." Let us see the commemoration to this champion of human rights go ahead:
