Title: FINDINGS OF THE OFFICE OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL (OIG) DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE, CRITICAL OF FORENSIC WORK PERFORMED
BY CERTAIN LAB EXAMINERS

Synopsis: To place this document on record in the Task Force control file and to place a copy on the top serial in every investigative file containing forensic work performed by any of the thirteen Laboratory Examiners whose scientific work was criticized by the OIG.

Reference: 66F-HQ-A1211968 Serial 82

Details: BE ADVISED, one or more of the Laboratory Examiners who performed scientific analysis in this investigation was criticized in the OIG's report issued on April 15, 1997. The OIG conducted a thorough review of allegations of wrongdoing and improper practices within certain sections of the FBI Laboratory. It issued a report which, among other findings, was critical of the scientific work performed by thirteen individual examiners assigned to the Lab. The allegations and criticisms concerning these individuals varies greatly and in some instances is case specific.

If the forensic work contained in this file is used in any way in the future, both the OIG's findings and the forensic analysis of the examiners should be reviewed. In addition, legal advice should be obtained as to the FBI's disclosure obligations.

The criticized examiners are, in alphabetical order:

MOTION FOR INTER-STATE
SUBPONEA OF F.B.I. CHEMIST
WILLIAM MCGINNIS

TO THE HONORABLE, THE JUDGES OF THE SAID COURT:

The defendant, by and through his attorney, Norris E. Gelman, Esquire herein petitions this Court for an inter-state subpoena under the Uniform Act to Secure the Attendance of Witnesses from Without a State in Criminal Proceedings, and in support thereof alleges:

1. That the defendant was arrested on March 28, 1979 and charged as above.
2. That a Motion to Suppress Evidence was heard in late October, 1979 and remains open, the jurist having postponed his ruling therein pending additional evidence.
3. That discovery proceedings in this case have been difficult.
4. That on November 28, 1979, an F.B.I. report dated November 9, 1979 was made available to the defense for the first time.

5. That the 11/9/79 F.B.I. report is the first scientific evaluation of what has heretofore been assumed to be blood and human protein.

6. That the 11/9/79 F.B.I. report indicates that there was no blood and/or human protein in the trunk or on its contents, and no blood on the floor boards or sub-flooring.

7. That a crucial issue at the motion to suppress involved the accuracy of the search warrant.

8. That the defense argued at the suppression hearing that the warrant was stale.

9. That the search warrant was based on the allegation that blood and protein would remain intact for 18 months.

10. That the jurist who presided over the preliminary hearing heard testimony concerning leakage and odors dating to some time in the middle of September 1977, and utilized such testimony to hold the defendant for court.

11. That the suppression hearing was predicated on similar testimony.

12. That Judge Della Porta who presides over the suppression hearing was forced to rule that certain statements made by the defendant were not proper subjects for a suppression hearing and that their introduction would only serve to inflame the press, and prejudice the defendant's case at trial.

13. That F.B.I. Chemist, Special Agent William McGinnis informed the prosecution orally by telephone of his results.

14. That the defense was totally unaware of McGinnis' results until November 28, 1979.

15. That the prosecutor did know, or should have known, prior to the suppression hearing at least that the results of the F.B.I. testing was totally negative.

16. That if the prosecutor did know of such a totally negative report it had a duty not to rely on such evidence, and indeed to inform the defense of same, and had no right to continue to broadcast such information to the press thereby attempting to poison it against the defendant.

17. That the only way that such information can be admitted to the suppression hearing is through the testimony of Special Agent Chemist McGinnis, and such testimony is relevant not only to the suppression issues, but also to the pattern of misconduct which may be developing in this case.

18. That the defense is willing to proffer the witness fees involved under the applicable statute, 42 Pa. C.S.A. section 5964 (b), a copy of which is attached.

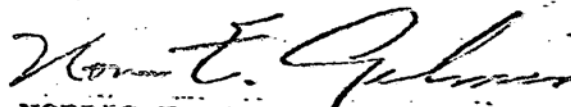

19. That Special Agent William McGinnis can be found, and is employed at the F.B.I. Laboratory at 10th and Pennsylvania Avenues in the District of Columbia, and that the District of Columbia is a party to the Uniform Act to Secure Attendance of Witnesses from Without a State in Criminal Proceedings (D.C.C.E. sections 23-1501 to 23-1504) See 19 P.S. section 615 as applicable to 42 Pa. C.S.A. section 5964.

20. That the delay in obtaining the F.B.I. report of 8 months is in no manner attributable to the defense which constantly harped for its production, and secured a continuance from this Court awaiting its results in October.

21. That the cause of justice would be served by issuing a subpoena for Special Agent Chemist William McGinnis.

WHEREFORE, the defense respectfully requests that this Court certify under 42 Pa. C.S.A. section 5964 that Special Agent Chemist William McGinnis is a material witness in the above captioned proceeding and that his appearance is necessary for one day in Court here in Philadelphia.

Respectfully submitted,

After seeing the evidence and discussing the type of examinations that would be required, it was decided that the Philadelphia Police Department would transport the evidence to the FBI Laboratory during the week of 4/2/79.

A brief description of the crime follows:

It is alleged that the suspect murdered the victim and placed her in a storage trunk. This trunk was then placed in a closet which was in the suspect's apartment. The crime is thought to have occurred during September 1977. Evidence and statements indicate that the body remained in the closet until found by the Police Department on 3/28/79.

The suspect denies knowledge of the murder or of the body. The FBI's expertise is needed to show that the suspect could have placed the body in the trunk. It is hoped by the police that hair like the suspect's will be found in the contents of the trunk and that latent fingerprints from the suspect will be found inside of the trunk. The police also wish to show that the body fluids on the inside of the trunk are like the body fluids that seeped down into the apartment below the suspect's, which they feel would help prove that the trunk was there since September 1977.

SUBJECT: REQUEST FOR CRIME SCENE ASSISTANCE

PURPOSE: To report request from SAC, Philadelphia for assistance and counseling on behalf of the Philadelphia Police Department in processing a crime scene in a major homicide matter.

DETAILS: At 11:25 a. m. , SAC Edgar N. Best, Philadelphia Office, telephonically advised that he had been contacted by the Philadelphia Police Department who in turn had made a request for technical assistance in processing a crime scene. Mr. Best explained the Philadelphia Police Department had been working a major missing persons/suspected homicide case and had just recovered the victim who was in a mummified condition in a trunk. The Police Department expressed concern in handling the victim and the contents of the trunk to insure that no latent fingerprints or other evidence were lost during the initial handling. Accordingly, the Police Department requested assistance from the FBI in handling the crime scene.

Mr. Best stated the Philadelphia Police Department had the capability of processing the crime scene, but they had requested our opinion in arriving at the best manner in which to process the evidence. He requested representatives from FBI Headquarters report to Philadelphia and offer assistance and guidance.

SAC Best's request was coordinated with [redacted] of the Laboratory Division and at approximately 1:30 p. m. [redacted] (Latent Fingerprint Section, Identification Division) and [redacted] (Microscopic Analysis Unit, Laboratory Division) left FBI Headquarters in a Bureau vehicle en route to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

RECOMMENDATION:

None, for information.

THIS REPORT IS FURNISHED FOR OFFICIAL USE ONLY

Commissioner of Police

July 13, 1979

The fingers were examined and an inked fingerprint, suitable for identification purposes, was obtained from one of the fingers. No identifiable ridge detail was obtained from the remaining fingers.

The inked fingerprint obtained from the finger has been identified as an impression of the left middle finger of Helen Maddux, your #495501.

The trunk and contents, newspapers from the trunk, rubber gloves, scissors, room deodorizers, lock, hasp, screws, keys and exterior surfaces of the suitcase, were examined, but no latent prints of value were present or developed.

Exterior surfaces of cardboard cartons #1, #2, #3, #5, and selected items from cartons #2, #3, #5, and #12, were examined and thirty-three latent fingerprints, four latent palm prints and one latent impression, which could be either a fingerprint or a palm print, of value were developed on the following items:

Two fingerprints on a porcelain plate and a pamphlet from carton #2
One fingerprint on a boric acid container
from carton #3
Thirty fingerprints, four palm prints and one impression on thirteen paper items
from carton #5

b7C The latent print examination was discontinued at this point, in accordance with information telephonically furnished by [redacted] on June 22, 1979.

One latent fingerprint developed on a pamphlet entitled "CHEESELOVERS," from carton #2, has been identified as an impression of the left thumb of Helen Maddux, your #495501.

Twenty-eight latent fingerprints developed on the following specimens, from cartons #2, #3 and #5, have been identified as finger impressions of Ira Einhorn, FBI #654409L8:

One on a porcelain plate entitled "The Flowers of January"

Commissioner of Police

July 13, 1979

- One on a plastic jar of "RITE AID" powdered boric acid
- Eight on copies of six pages from the book entitled "UNINVITED VISITORS"
- Eight on a paper beginning "A minority report:....," dated October, 1978
- One on a report entitled "Psychic Process, Energy Transfer, and Things That Go Bump in the Night"
- Two on a copy of an article entitled "Learning from the Future," dated September 28, 1978
- Two on a pamphlet entitled "Bio Systems"
- Two on a paper entitled "MONEYSWORTH (13)," dated July 19, 1978
- One on an article from a copy of the "Saturday Review," dated September 2, 1978, entitled "Pension Power"
- One on an article entitled "Tapping the Zero-Point Energy," dated May 12, 1978
- One on a paper entitled "The Intent of Creation"

The remaining latent fingerprints are not identical with the fingerprints of Einhorn or Maddux. The latent palm prints and latent impression were compared, insofar as possible, with the submitted finger and palm prints of Einhorn and fingerprints of Maddux, but no identification was effected.

Additional inked prints, legibly and fully rolled, to include sides and lower joint areas of the fingers, and palm prints, are needed for conclusive comparisons of the latent palm prints and latent impression.

Photographs of the unidentified latent prints have been placed in our files and will be available for any additional comparisons desired.

Should you desire the assistance of one of the FBI's fingerprint experts in the trial of this case, we should be notified in ample time to permit the necessary arrangements. This report should be used, however, if legal considerations permit, in lieu of the appearance of our expert in any pretrial action such as a preliminary hearing or grand jury presentation. Our representative cannot be made available to testify if any other fingerprint expert is to present testimony on the same point, that is, that the impressions in question are identical.

The submitted copies of the finger and palm prints of Einhorn and Maddux are being retained. The remaining items and a photographic copy of the inked fingerprint obtained from one of the fingers are being held in our Latent Fingerprint Section, until called for by a representative of your department. The disposition of the items submitted for laboratory examination only will be furnished in the Laboratory report.

RE: Commonwealth v. Ira Einhorn
C.P. April Term, 1979 # 1296
Charge: Murder, Involuntary Manslaughter

Dear Agent [redacted] b7C

Pursuant to our telephone discussion today, enclosed please find three subpoenas for Agents Laswell, McGinnis, and Robbalard. There is another report dated July 13, 1979 which contains Latent Case No. B-72995, F.B.I. File No. 95-229779, and Lab # 79-90469 and I do not know the identity of the person who did that fingerprint analysis (4 not belonging to Einhorn or the deceased). There is a blank subpoena for that agent.

All of the subpoenas are for Thursday, February 12, 1981 which is the estimated date that the agents will testify. It is, of course, subject to change, and I will alert you to any change as soon as I know of it. I did reach Agent Laswell who informed me that he was available for the 12th of February, but did not reach Agent McGinnis or Robbalard.

Agent Laswell did speak to me about the reimbursement of travel expenses for the one day that he and Agent McGinnis testified here, and I told him that I would speak to you about it. I did not mean to fail to pay, and would appreciate paying directly through you, if we have to pay, as opposed to first paying the District Attorney's office here in Philadelphia.

An affidavit is also enclosed which indicates the reasons why the testimony of the agents subpoenaed is necessary to the defense. Briefly, Agents Laswell and McGinnis establish that no blood, human protein, or compounds normally associated with a decomposing body were found during their testing.

Agent  report establishes that there were two human head hairs found in the trunk as well as one pubic hair found there that do not match up with Einhorn or the deceased.

The 4 fingerprints which, of a total of 33, do not match-up with the deceased or Einhorn were found on materials on top of the trunk.

Please be so kind as to get back to me indicating that you have received this letter and the subpoenas, and let me know if there is any problem in the availability of agents McGinnis, Robbalard, or the fingerprint expert. If there are availability problems, I need to know as soon as possible.

Again, many thanks for your kind cooperation in this matter.

Sincerely yours,

NORRIS E. GELMAN

Norris E. Gelman, Esquire, attorney for Ira Einhorn having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that the testimony of Agents Laswell, McGinnis and Robbalard is necessary in the defense of the Einhorn case in that:

1. Agent McGinnis filed a written report which indicates that his testing revealed no blood or human protein in or on the items in the trunk in which the deceased was found, the floor boards underneath it, the sub-flooring or the plaster involved.
2. Agent Laswell filed a report which indicates that his testing revealed no human protein on said items, and that his testing revealed no compounds normally associated with a decomposing body in the trunk or on the above mentioned items.
3. Agent Robbalard filed a report which indicates the presence of three hairs, two human head hairs and one human pubic hair found in the trunk with the deceased that do not match up to Einhorn or the deceased.
4. The fingerprint expert found 4 fingerprints on items on top of the trunk involved which do not compare with Einhorn or the deceased.

He further states that the testimony of the above agents is to be presented before the jury, and is critical to the proper defense of the case.

Lab: No Blood in Trunk with 'Holly's' Body

By PHILIP WEISS

The trunk in which the body of Ira Einhorn's former girl friend was found shows no traces of blood or human protein, an FBI laboratory report shows.

Einhorn, 38, was charged last March 28 with the murder of Helen (Holly) Maddux, 31, after police searched his Powelton Village apartment and found the trunk containing Maddux's partially mummified corpse.

The Nov. 9, 1979, FBI report, a copy of which was obtained by the Daily News, says no blood or human protein was found in "the debris" in the trunk and no blood was found in floorboards, ceiling plaster, wooden slats or subflooring under the trunk. The district attorney's office apparently requested the analysis.

NORRIS GELLMAN, Einhorn's attorney, indicated in a hearing last month that the evidence is important to his defense because it tends to contradict prosecution testimony suggesting Maddux was killed in the second-floor apartment and deposited in the trunk.

"The implications are clear that Holly was slain in a location other than Ira's apartment, drained and then deposited in the trunk," Gellman wrote last month in an apparent fund-raising letter to a former friend of Einhorn's.

Prosecutor Barbara Christie discounted the report last November in open court when she stressed that the FBI is conducting further tests of the trunk and flooring samples for "the presence or absence of the products normally associated with a decomposing body."

THE FBI LAB REPORT states that such tests are continuing, but adds, "it should be noted these analyses require the development of new and specialized procedures..."

The case against Einhorn is still in its preliminary stages and will not go to trial until Gellman has finished his stint as a backup defense attorney in the MOVE murder trial.

In an earlier report sent to the police, an FBI technician identified one pubic hair found in the trunk as dissimilar to either Maddux's or Einhorn's pubic hair. It was found among debris on a plaid shirt, presumably the shirt on the corpse.

In addition to many of Maddux's hairs, the report identified one hair as belonging to Einhorn: a white beard hair from the "top lip" of the trunk.

AND A THIRD FBI lab analysis, made last June 7, identified 33 fingerprints from cardboard cartons that had been piled on top of the trunk. Twenty-eight were identified as Einhorn's, one as Maddux's, and four were deemed not to belong to either.

Gellman, Christie, and Joseph Murray, chief assistant D.A. for homicide, all declined to comment on the lab reports.

But during a hearing on defense discovery motions last month, Gellman brought up the November report on blood and human protein. "In the trunk, on the trunk, on the bottom of the trunk, on the floor boards is a substance, but it has no blood and it has no protein," Gellman said.

Although other tenants of the apartment house at 3411 Race St. had testified they saw a tacky substance on the wall under Einhorn's apartment, Gellman said it "is not human material."

PAUL HERRE 3d, a student who has since moved from the building, said he saw a "tacky residue" and smelled a "grotesque" odor in a utility closet under Einhorn's apartment in the fall of 1977.

Herre also said that in September 1977, about the time the prosecution claims Maddux was killed, he heard "several sharp thuds and a female's voice in a bloodcurdling scream" coming from Einhorn's apartment.

Police obtained a search warrant for Einhorn's apartment last year after presenting a detailed 35-page statement declaring Maddux had been missing since September 1977 and alleging she had been dead since then.

Gellman has sought to throw out that warrant — and the evidence in the trunk — in a motion before Common Pleas Judge Armand DeLoe. Gellman has subpoenaed the FBI lab expert to appear in court Jan. 18 in connection with this motion.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

SS

COUNTY OF PHILADELPHIA

Norris E. Gelman, Esquire having been duly sworn according to law deposes and says that he is the attorney for Ira Einhorn who is charged in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania with Murder on Bill 1296 of the April Term, 1979, and that the Suppression Hearing in the Einhorn case is listed for the 8th of February, 1980.

He further states that the District Attorney's office per Barbara Christie, Esquire has refused to stipulate to the admission in said hearing of any affidavits of the F.B.I. wherein the dates and names of the testing done on certain items are included in the affidavit.

Special Agent Lynn Laswell is a necessary witness in the Suppression hearing of February 8, 1980 in that he performed the testing and work done on a report dated January 8, 1980 which indicates that this is the final report of the F.B.I. and that certain material cannot be identified as being similar to other certain material.

Lynn Laswell is necessary also in that he can identify his written report of January 4, 1980 and state that it is his report.

Mr. Laswell also can inform the court of the dates and the names of the tests done to reach the conclusions in the report dated January 4, 1980. The Suppression judge has called these reports "the heart of the suppression."

Respectfully submitted

C.C. Fulton, "Putrefactive bases in toxicology", The Bulletin of the International Association of Forensic Toxicologists, 2, 1-3 (1965).

The early toxicologists concerned themselves with putrefactive bases but little attention is now paid to them. One modern book virtually congratulates the analyst who makes his extractive recoveries so badly that bases of decomposition are nearly all lost. The problem thus disappears.

Phenethylamine is seldom even mentioned as a decomposition base in modern toxicologies. It is the commonest one in toxicologic extracts so made as to provide any chance of finding an amphetamine-type drug.

Most toxicology textbooks do not give any list of the common decomposition bases. Some organic chemistry books mention that the most prevalent of them arise from decarboxylation of the amino-acids. This is not a change readily accomplished with laboratory chemicals (unless these include enzymes), but bacteria manage it with ease.

So here is a list of most of the bases that may be formed in this way:-

| Amino-acid   | Organic Base by Decarboxylation     |
|---------------------|--------------------------------------------|
| 1. Glycine          | Methylamine gas                            |
| 2. Alanine          | Ethylamine gas                             |
| 3. Aspartic acid    | Ethylamine gas                             |
| 4. Glutamic acid    | Propylamine liquid, b. 48-9°               |
| 5. Valine           | Isobutylamine liquid, b. 68-9°             |
| 6. Proline          | Pyrrolidine liquid, b. 88-9°               |
| 7. Leucine          | Isopentylamine liquid, b. 95°              |
| 8. Isoleucine       | sec.-Pentylamine                           |
| 9. Arginine (hydr.) |                                            |
| → Ornithine         | Butanediamine (Putrescine) m. 27°, b. 158° |
| 10. Lysine          | Pentanediamine (Cadaverine) b. 118-180°    |
| 11. Serine          | Ethanolamine liquid, b. 171°               |
| 12. Hydroxyproline  | Hydroxypyrrolidine                         |
| 13. Phenylalanine   | Phenethylamine liquid, b. 194-5°           |
| 14. Histidine       | Histamine solid, m. 83-4°                  |
| 15. Tryptophan      | Tryptamine (Indole-ethylamine) m. 116°     |
| 16. Tyrosine        | Tyramine solid, m. 164-5°                  |

All of these bases have been actually identified in putrefied animal material.

Cysteine and methionine are not included above as I have not found mention of their products, but presumably these are  $\text{H}_2\text{N}-\text{CH}_2-\text{CH}_2-\text{SH}$  and  $\text{H}_2\text{N}-\text{CH}_2-\text{CH}_2-\text{CH}_2-\text{S}-\text{CH}_3$ .

The boiling points of the liquid bases signify very little as they are readily volatile with water vapour even at room temperature.

Naturally, they have to be recovered as salts, but this is true also of amphetamine, and of so many modern drugs that the addition of HCl before evaporating a toxicologic extract is routine, except when an examination is made only for a specific non-volatile drug.

Isopentylamine, phenethylamine, pyrrolidine, and tyramine have been identified in the usual toxicologic extracts here. Some bases of the above list are not commonly found in toxicologic extracts because of high water-solubility, and some have no great solubility in ether or chloroform. The decarboxylation itself takes place in an acid medium and has been suggested as a means employed by the bacteria to prevent their environment from becoming too acid. Hence, in the putrefaction, the volatile bases do not simply escape. It seems fairly clear that the major factors determining which may be found in toxicologic residues depends, not so much, in the putrefaction, as in the recovery process.

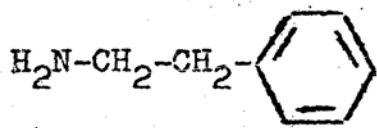

The substances listed above, are of course, not the only decomposition bases. Choline and trimethylamine may also be particularly mentioned. Choline, which to some extent may occur as such in animals and plants, is formed from lecithin by hydrolysis. Trimethylamine arises from deamination of choline, easily accomplished by oxidation. Deamination is another general process but deamination of the amino-acids produces merely ammonia.

The bases of decomposition featured in toxicology books are putanediamine, also known as putrescine, and pentanediamine, also called cadaverine. Because of their names, authors apparently assume that they must be the principal ones that would be found if decomposition bases were actually identified in toxicologic extracts. However, they are not especially extractable. Moreover, their Rfs are quite low in the procedure used here, and they do not interfere with important drugs so far identified in the extracts.

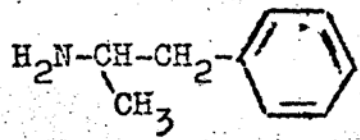

Quite otherwise are phenethylamine and isopentylamine. They are extracted, and their Rfs are in the same region as those of many important drugs. Even if volatility procedures are used in addition, their general behaviour is still like that of drugs belonging to the important group of readily volatile sympathomimetics (amphetamine and about a dozen others), to which indeed they are closely related in structure and reactions.

These substances obviously require identification tests that give genuinely specific results. Certainly, the first requirement for the toxicologist in regard to them is to be able to recognize phenethylamine and isopentylamine beyond doubt; and then for a suspected drug of the same general character, not to rely on any tests without knowing the response to them of phenethylamine and isopentylamine.

No semen was found on the items comprising Q32.

There is no anticipated date of completion of the chemical examinations being conducted in this matter due to the complex nature of the examinations.

Chemical analyses of specimens Q18 and Q24 through Q31 to identify the presence of chemicals normally associated with the decomposition of a human body are continuing. It should be noted these analyses require the development of new and specialized procedures for which no estimate of time required to complete the examination can be furnished. You will continue to be advised of progress in this regard.

Result of examination:

One white Caucasian beard hair found in specimen Q17 exhibits the same microscopic characteristics as those present in specimen K4. One light brown head hair of Caucasian origin found in specimen Q11 and numerous light brown to brown Caucasian head hairs found in Q18 and on Q20 exhibit the same microscopic characteristics as specimen K1. Numerous brown Caucasian pubic hairs found in Q18 and on Q23 exhibit the same microscopic characteristics as specimen K2.

The above-described hairs could have originated from the indicated sources. It is pointed out that hairs do not possess enough individual microscopic characteristics to be positively identified as originating from a particular person to the exclusion of all others.

One dark brown Caucasian pubic hair found on Q20 is microscopically dissimilar to specimens K2 and K5. Two white Caucasian head hairs found on Q31 are microscopically dissimilar to K1 and K3. Accordingly, these hairs could not have originated from the indicated sources.

No hairs were found on specimens Q1 through Q10, Q12 through Q16 and Q19.

Specimen Q14 is a liquid type air freshener labeled "Airwick Brands", Carlstad, N.J. Q15 is a solid type air freshener labeled "Airwick Solid". Q16 is an air freshener type bottle which has no brand name label. The date of manufacture can not be determined by this Laboratory.

The other requested examinations are continuing. You will be advised of the results of those examinations and the disposition of the evidence by a separate report.

KNIGHT-RIDDER NEWSPAPERS

Einhorn's extradition is approved in France

The documents are signed.
But the fugitive convicted of killing Holly Maddux may appeal within 60 days.

French Premier Lionel Jospin has signed papers to extradite Ira Einhorn, the one-time Philadelphia counterculture guru who was convicted in absentia of the murder of Holly Maddux, to the United States, which he fled 19 years ago, just before he was to stand trial in the killing.

Einhorn has 60 days to appeal to France's Council of State, the nation's highest legal administrative body, and it may be months or years before that process is exhausted.

Reached by telephone at his home in the village of Champagne-Mouton, France, Einhorn reacted with surprise yesterday that Jospin had signed the extradition papers.

"This is not news that we have," Einhorn said. "We were led to understand that we would be informed" if French officials decided to advance the extradition process.

Einhorn declined to comment further until he got official word of Jospin's action from his lawyers. Jospin signed the order on Friday.

In addition to the Council of State, Einhorn could also appeal to the European Court of Human Rights, his lawyers have said.

The U.S. Justice Department notified the office of District Attorney Lynne Abraham yesterday that Jospin, who received the extradition papers more than a year ago, had signed them. Abraham, who was in Spokane, Wash., at a conference for district attorneys, issued a statement saying she was pleased.

"I am happy that the process is moving forward toward his facing justice," Abraham said. "However, given his track record, I am still concerned that he is going to flee. He has vowed never to return to Philadelphia."

Theodore Simon, a lawyer representing Einhorn, said Jospin's decision to sign the extradition papers was not surprising.

Simon said Einhorn's legal team would continue to argue that Einhorn has no guarantee he will get a new trial if he is brought back to the United States, despite a Pennsylvania law that allows him to petition for one. The lawyers would also argue that the Pennsylvania law is unconstitutional because it interferes with the final judgment of Einhorn's trial in absentia.

"The matter is not done," Simon said.

Einhorn, 60, jumped bail and went into hiding in 1981, just before his trial in the killing of Maddux, 30, a Bryn Mawr College graduate. Her decomposed body was found in a trunk in Einhorn's West Philadelphia apartment in 1979, about 18 months after she disappeared.

A Philadelphia court convicted him in absentia and sentenced him to life imprisonment in 1993. Einhorn has insisted he was framed and is innocent in Maddux's death.

In 1997, he was captured in France, living with his Swedish-born wife, Annika Flodin, under an assumed name in the southwestern village of Champagne-Mouton.

U.S. authorities asked to have Einhorn sent back to Philadelphia, but a Bordeaux court rejected the request in December 1997 on the grounds that he would not get a new trial. Under French law, anyone convicted in absentia is entitled to a retrial.

The Pennsylvania General Assembly passed special legislation granting Einhorn the chance to petition for a new trial, and U.S. officials pledged that Einhorn would not face execution.

The Bordeaux court then reversed itself, saying the extradition request could go forward. An appeals court agreed, and the matter moved to Jospin.

Last July, a Philadelphia civil jury ordered Einhorn to pay $907 million to Maddux's family.

With apparently no movement in the case since the middle of last year, Abraham sought help from the Clinton administration.

In December, Abraham asked Secretary of State Madeleine K. Albright to intervene. Abraham wrote to Albright complaining that Einhorn was "eating strawberries and blaming the CIA for Holly's murder." On July 10, Abraham asked President Clinton for his help during a fund-raiser for Democratic Senate candidate Ron Klink at the Warwick Hotel.

What Clinton may have done to speed the process along was not known yesterday, said Cathie Abookire, Abraham's spokeswoman.

Now, "the ball goes back to the defense," Abookire said.

In the interim, Einhorn is not in custody and only has to report to the police on a weekly basis, Abookire said.

"We're certainly in no way out of the woods," Abookire said.

Margaret Wakeman, a sister of Holly Maddux's, said she was cheered by the news that Jospin signed the extradition.

"It's pretty exciting to hear that there's one less move that he's [Einhorn's] got," said Wakeman, a nurse in Seattle.

Wakeman said she had heard that Jospin might sign the order before August "because August is when everyone goes on vacation."

"Let's see, it's been how many years? Three since the apprehension. A year and a half since the last court decision. I guess it's about time. Time takes on a new element and a new dimension when you're in the position we're in," said Wakeman, whose sister disappeared Sept. 12, 1977.

Wakeman was in Paris just on Thursday, vacationing with her family. When she passed the Justice Ministry building, she waved and said to herself, "Please sign it." Jospin signed the papers the next day.

"You go for every little lucky charm you can go for," Wakeman said.

Convicted Killer Is Ordered Extradited to U.S.

By FRANCIS X. CLINES

The prime minister of France has ordered that Ira S. Einhorn, once a charismatic leader of Philadelphia's counterculture who was convicted in absentia of murdering his girlfriend 22 years ago, be extradited to the United States, legal authorities announced yesterday.

"Given his track record, I am still concerned that he is going to flee," the Philadelphia district attorney, Lynne Abraham, said.

With a final legal challenge still possible, Ms. Abraham noted that Mr. Einhorn had been a fugitive for 20 years and had vowed never to return to his home city, where he had been celebrated as a leading hippie advocate of peace, mysticism and environmentalism.

The extradition was ordered by Prime Minister Lionel Jospin, said Ms. Abraham, who had no estimate on when American authorities hoped to regain custody of Mr. Einhorn, now 60. He has been fighting extradition since, after an extensive search across Europe, he was discovered three years ago living under an alias in Champagne-Mouton in the Bordeaux region of France.

Mr. Einhorn jumped $40,000 bail and disappeared as he was about to go on trial in the 1977 killing of Holly Maddux, who had been his lover. The police found Ms. Maddux's body in a steamer trunk in Mr. Einhorn's apartment 18 months after she disappeared.

Mr. Einhorn's transition from counterculture guru to accused murderer caused a sensation in Philadelphia. He denied committing the killing, saying the Central Intelligence Agency, KGB or other "large intelligence agencies" sought to frame him because he had uncovered classified mind-control experiments.

Mr. Einhorn has 60 days to appeal with France's highest administrative tribunal, the Council of State.

Last year, after lengthy legal maneuvering, the French Court of Appeals ruled that Mr. Einhorn could be extradited provided he would be granted a new trial and would not face the death penalty. The court decided to reverse its earlier order protecting Mr. Einhorn after Pennsylvania enacted a law in 1998 granting people convicted in absentia the right to a new trial if they returned and demanded one.

Mr. Einhorn's lawyer, Theodore Simon, said yesterday that there was no way to guarantee a retrial. The 1998 law, Mr. Simon said, was clearly unconstitutional because it would violate the separation of powers in having a state legislature try to force a retrial on the court system.

Mr. Einhorn has been free since he was arrested three years ago. He was required to report weekly to the authorities in France, where he lived in a remote millhouse with his wife.

Man convicted in absentia faces extradition, new trial

After more than 20 years on the lam, convicted murderer Ira Einhorn, 60, might finally be headed home to Philadelphia to again stand trial for killing his girlfriend in 1977. French Prime Minister Lionel Jospin signed an extradition order three years after Einhorn, a former anti-Vietnam War activist, was discovered living under a false name in the village of Champagne-Mouton, near Bordeaux. Einhorn was convicted in absentia in 1994 of killing Holly Maddux of Texas. The 30-year-old woman's mummified corpse was found stuffed in a trunk in a closet in Einhorn's Philadelphia apartment 18 months after she disappeared in 1977.

The trial in absentia was a sticking point with the French courts, and the U.S. extradition request was turned down until Pennsylvania passed a law agreeing to give Einhorn a new trial. Einhorn's French lawyers said Tuesday that they plan to appeal Jospin's decision, which could delay the extradition.

Make War on the War on Drugs

The Justice Department has just issued another indicator of the damage being done by the war on drugs: An all-time high of 6.3 million people were under correctional supervision in 1999—1.86 million men and women behind bars and 4.5 million on parole or probation, 24 percent of them for drug offenses.

The criminal justice system reached 1 percent of the adult population in 1980. Its reach now exceeds 3 percent—about one of every 32 people. Our $40 billion-a-year war on drugs has created more prisons, more criminals, more drug abuse and more disease. An estimated 60 percent of AIDS cases in women are attributed to dirty needles and syringes.

A recent U.S. Supreme Court decision probably will spur more litigation in the drug war, as prisoners use the ruling to appeal unusually harsh sentences.

The court ruled that any factual determination used to increase a sentence will have to be made by a jury, not a judge. While a judge can use a standard of the preponderance of the evidence in sentencing, a jury must decide beyond a reasonable doubt, says Graham Boyd, director of the Drug Policy Litigation Project of the American Civil Liberties Union. "If the government wants to impose draconian sentences for drug crimes, they should have at the very least to prove their case to a jury by a criminal standard, and that hasn't happened in the past—amazingly."

That's just one example of the civil rights casualties of a war in which paramilitary police raid people's homes and authorities seize their assets without due process, flying in the face of the Fourth and Fifth amendments.

A few politicians are brave enough to declare the obvious: The war on drugs hasn't worked. New Mexico's Gary E. Johnson (R) was the first governor to call for marijuana legalization and other major drug policy reforms. Rep. Tom Campbell (R-Calif.), a candidate for the U.S. Senate, is the first major-party politician to run statewide with a platform that includes prescription access to heroin. They will speak at the "shadow conventions" to be held at the same time as the Republican and Democratic conventions to address three issues of critical importance that organizers say are being given short shrift by the two major parties: the drug war, campaign finance reform and the growing gulf between rich and poor.

Drug policies affect millions of people who have family members behind bars. Some of them will be at the shadow conventions. They will put names and faces on this whole failed drug war effort. Many of them are likely to be black. While African Americans constitute 13 percent of the illegal drug users, they account for 74 percent of those sentenced for drug offenses. Convicted felons lose their right to vote, a backdoor way of reconstituting Jim Crow laws.

Pressure to change drug laws is mounting, and it is coming from unlikely places, including farmers, who are forbidden to grow hemp, the plant from which marijuana comes but which has other, non-drug uses. The Lindesmith Center, which advocates drug policy reform, did a survey several years ago that found more than 50 percent of farmers in five midwestern and western states favored legalizing hemp. Only 35 percent were opposed.

"This was the first indication we had that the public, in fairly conservative agricultural states, were supporting this," says Ethan Nadelmann, executive director of the center.

More recently, Hawaii and North Dakota passed legislation legalizing hemp's cultivation, and similar measures are "in play" in more than 10 other states, Nadelmann says. From 30 to 40 countries, including Canada, have made it legal. "This is quite galling for farmers on the northern border who can look across the border and see people growing this stuff," he says.

Nadelmann believes that both Texas Gov. George W. Bush and Vice President Gore, the Republican and Democratic presidential candidates, would be well served if they did some research on hemp. "It may be an issue that a number of people care about, and it would be sending a message they are willing to think rationally about the economic and agricultural interests of farmers even when the product has a relationship to marijuana."

The Lindesmith Center is one of more than 35 public policy, health, religious and racial advocacy organizations that sent a list of 10 tough questions to the presidential candidates during the primaries, pointing out where the drug policies have failed and asking what they would do to change them.

None of the candidates have answered, according to Kevin B. Zeese, co-chair of the National Coalition for Effective Drug Policies, although the groups will try to pursue the issue during the general election campaign. "Unless the drug issue is forced on them, they prefer to avoid it rather than confront it," Zeese says. "Our basic point is the drug war is bankrupt and our policymakers aren't facing up to it. We tried to construct those questions in a way that showed the drug war methods are causing more problems than they solve, and we got a range of groups to show a breadth of concern about this."

Highly visible people, including Minnesota Gov. Jesse Ventura (I), are now calling for a genuine debate on how to deal with drugs. Approaches gaining support include legalizing marijuana (except for sale to minors), prescription access to heroine, needle exchanges, taxing drugs and redirecting most of the drug war funding into public health and education.

We are a nation of intelligent and thoughtful people who deserve better than overheated rhetoric and a drug policy dictated by crazy hard-liners and pandering politicians. At the very least, in the face of the well-documented harm the war on drugs has caused, we deserve a debate on how to control the drug market in a way that works. This lackluster presidential campaign would be a good place to start.

In August of 1977, Helen Holly Maddux sent her last letter to her family in Tyler, Texas. She was vacationing on Fire Island, New York, and announced that she intended to take her own apartment upon returning to Philadelphia. By September 9, 1977, Ira Einhorn, a well-known Philadelphia activist and her lover of five years, knew she was resolved to leave him, and that she had planned a cruise with another man. Einhorn called Holly and gave her an ultimatum -- come see him or see all of her belongings tossed out into the street. Holly called several friends before returning to Philadelphia personally to calm Ira. Several days later, she disappeared forever. In March of 1979, Philadelphia Police, working with the cooperation of private investigators hired by the Maddux family, obtained a warrant to search the premises at Ira Einhorn's apartment. They opened closet on Einhorn's porch and found boxes of Holly's possessions, and a steamer trunk. The mummified body inside that trunk was identified as that of the missing Holly Maddux. Charged with murder, Philadelphia's former guru posted a bail of 4,000 and fled to Europe.

Victim's body was found in a mummified state. Additionally, the subject was still living at the residence when the body was found by the local police. Subsequently, subject was arrested by the PHILADELPHIA POLICE DEPARTMENT (PPHD) and charged with murder. On January 14, 1981, subject failed to appear for local court proceedings on the above charge and local bench warrant was issued. On January 27, 1981, United States Magistrate RICHARD A. POWERS, III, Eastern District of Pennsylvania (EDPA), authorized issuance of an Unlawful Flight to Avoid Prosecution (UFAP) Warrant charging subject with violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 1073.

Investigation by FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION (FBI), Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and the DISTRICT ATTORNEY'S OFFICE, Philadelphia, determined that fugitive EINHORN and girlfriend [REDACTED] briefly resided in London, England, during the months of February and March, 1981. In April 1981, EINHORN and girlfriend traveled to Dublin, Ireland, and lived together until their separation in 1984.

PRESS RELEASE

Bob C. Reutter, Special Agent in Charge of the Philadelphia Division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) and Lynne Abraham, District Attorney, City of Philadelphia, announced today the arrest of Ira Einhorn. Einhorn was arrested without incident on Friday, June 13, 1997 by the French Judicial Police in the Bordeaux Regional Office. Einhorn, 57, was arrested in an old windmill which had been converted into a residence located at Le Moulin de Guित्रy, 16350 Champagne-Mouton, Bordeaux, France and was using the name Eugene Mallon. He is currently being held in a French prison located in Bordeaux.

Einhorn is wanted for the murder of Holly Maddux, a 27 year old female who was reported missing in 1977. In 1979, Maddux's body was found stuffed in a trunk which was secreted in a closet located in Einhorn's apartment. He was charged at that time with the murder and released on $50,000 bail. He never reported for any further court proceedings. A federal fugitive warrant was obtained in 1981. Einhorn was tried in absentia and convicted in September, 1993 of the murder of Holly Maddux. He was sentenced to life in prison.

The Philadelphia District Attorney's Office will continue to work with the French authorities regarding the extradition of Einhorn. No date has been set for the extradition. There are no recent photographs available of Ira Einhorn.

A long term cooperative effort between the FBI and the Philadelphia District Attorney's Office as well as considerable assistance from Interpol and the French Provincial Police has resulted in the final chapter of this fugitive investigation.

Fugitive murderer, onetime counterculture guru, captured in France

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A counterculture guru, convicted in absentia of murdering his girlfriend two decades ago and hiding her body in a trunk, has been captured in Europe after 16 years as a fugitive, the FBI said today.

Ira Einhorn, 57, was arrested without incident Friday at his converted windmill home in France's Bordeaux region, the FBI said in a statement this morning.

He had been using the alias Eugene Mallon, the name of an Irish friend, officials said.

Einhorn was captured in part with leads developed after a story about his syndicated television program "Unsolved Mysteries," officials said. His Swedish girlfriend's application for a French driver's license also alerted authorities to Einhorn's whereabouts.

"I feel a tremendous (sense) of gratification and relief," District Attorney Lynne Abraham said at a news conference this morning. She said she looked forward to seeing him come before the judge who sentenced him.

"I guess persistence pays off," said Richard DiBenetto, a district attorney's office investigator on the case since 1981.

A judge in 1993 sentenced Einhorn to life in prison for murdering Helen "Holly" Maddux in 1977 and hiding her body in a trunk, which he put in a closet of his apartment.

Police found Maddux's mummified remains in Einhorn's apartment in 1979, 18 months after they say she was killed. The remains were discovered after the stench filtered into neighboring apartments.

Witnesses testified that Maddux, 31, had been trying to break off the relationship with Einhorn.

Einhorn's attorney, Norris Gelman, said this morning that his client would challenge extradition to the United States.

"That may prevent him from coming back because the European courts don't like trials in absentia," Gelman said. "I think that essentially what one would look for in this kind of case, he would be sent back (only) if he gets a new trial. ... That's the best scenario."

Challenges could delay extradition up to a year, officials said. Gelman said he had not spoken to Einhorn since 1981, when his client disappeared just before he was to stand trial.

Before making the arrest, French police put Einhorn under surveillance and reported that he was "very cautious, almost wary and suspicious," said FBI Special Agent Bob Reutter. After the arrest, he said, Einhorn was "cool, cold."

A brilliant and charismatic bear of a figure, Einhorn was a ladies' man and counterculture oddball given to such habits as answering his door stark naked.

Though he dressed in a dashiki and dirty jeans, sported shoulder-length hair and frequently smelled bad, Einhorn established a successful place as a New Age corporate guru-consultant in the 1970s with a global network of scientists, corporate sponsors and wealthy benefactors.

At his preliminary hearing in 1979, the courtroom was packed with professors, lawyers, civic leaders and other prominent Philadelphians who wanted to testify about his good character.

Several hearings were held before Einhorn, free on $40,000 bail, boarded a plane for London with a new girlfriend.

Steven Levy, who wrote a biography of Einhorn, said Einhorn had befriended celebrities, local business and religious leaders, and counterculture figures, including the late Abbie Hoffman.

"Ira ingratiated himself to these folks they would buy him lunch and he would tell them about the future," Levy said.

out that Champagne Mouton is located in the French Region of POITOU-CHARENTES, and the city of Champagne Mouton is actually in the French Department of CHARENTE, located in the west of France near the Atlantic Ocean. The FNP Judicial Police responsible for this area is located in their headquarters city of Bordeaux. Press Statement
3/13/00

France: Extradition Case of Ira Einhorn

The United States continues to urge France to extradite Ira Einhorn to Pennsylvania to stand trial for the 1977 murder of Holly Maddux. Officials from the Department of State and the U.S. Embassy in Paris have worked tirelessly with French interlocutors and underscored the importance of this case to the United States. Most recently, Secretary of State Albright raised the Einhorn extradition with both Prime Minister Jospin and Foreign Minister Vedrine. The extradition order is currently before Prime Minister Jospin as required under French law. Mr. Einhorn, who fled the United States nineteen years ago, is allowed to have one final, administrative review before the French Conseil d'Etat before he can be extradited.

By way of background, French authorities arrested Mr. Einhorn in June, 1997 for the murder of Ms. Maddux. As in other extradition cases, the United States has cooperated extensively with France during the ensuing extradition litigation in French courts. In response to the specific concerns of the Government of France, the United States provided assurances that Mr. Einhorn, who was convicted of Ms. Maddux's murder in absentia, could have a second trial if he requests one, after he is returned to the United States.

The Department of State has taken every opportunity to inform the GOF of the importance of this case. In response to repeated efforts by the U.S. Embassy in Paris, French authorities recently raised several questions that have been communicated to the Department of Justice. These questions concern the constitutionality of the Pennsylvania statute granting Mr. Einhorn a new trial, regarding the ability to challenge the statute in court, and of the application of the death penalty. The Department of Justice is responding to these questions and we expect the Government of France to make its decision on the extradition case quickly thereafter.

The Department of State continues to follow this case closely, and has reiterated to the Government of France that their prompt and favorable action regarding this matter is essential.

Ira Einhorn, 60 ans, américain, ancien gourou des sixties accusé de meurtre, attend son extradition dans son moulin de Charente.

Le secret de «la Licorne»

Il est condamné à perpétuité pour meurtre. Sa dette, 907 millions de dollars, s'alourdit avec les intérêts de 1 million de francs chaque jour. Il sait qu'un matin, dans un mois, dans un an, les gendarmes de Champagne-Mouton peuvent venir frapper à sa porte et l'embarquer vers une prison de Pennsylvanie. Mais Samuel Ira Einhorn, colosse fatigué, un peu voûté, assure dormir du sommeil du juste. Et ne craindre qu'une chose: les puces dans son potager bio.

Avec sa gueule de patriarche, son regard bleu dur de gourou et ses sermons new age, il a des adeptes sur le Vieux Continent. Jack Lang, Louis Mermaz, la Ligue des droits de l'homme, des députés, des facteurs, des vieilles dames, tous prêts à pétitionner contre son extradition vers les Etats-Unis. Là l'attend Lynne Abraham, procureur de Pennsylvanie, surnommée, par le New York Times, «la magistrate la plus meurtrière des Etats-Unis». «Rendez-nous notre assassin», clamait-elle en décembre dernier, furieuse du refus de la France d'extrader Einhorn. Dans une lettre à Madeleine Albright, secrétaire

Il est condamné à perpétuité pour meurtre. Sa dette, 907 millions de dollars, s'alourdit avec les intérêts de 1 million de francs chaque jour. Il sait qu'un matin, dans un mois, dans un an, les gendarmes de Champagne-Mouton peuvent venir frapper à sa porte et l'embarquer vers une prison de Pennsylvanie. Mais Samuel Ira Einhorn, colosse fatigué, un peu voûté, assure dormir du sommeil du juste. Et ne craindre qu'une chose. Les puce-rons dans son potager bio.

Avec sa gueule de patriarche, son regard bleu dur de gourou et ses sermons new age, il a des adeptes sur le Vieux Continent. Jack Lang, Louis Mermaz, la Ligue des droits de l'homme, des députés, des facteurs, des vieilles dames, tous prêts à pétitionner contre son extradition vers les Etats-Unis. Là l'attend Lynne Abraham, procureur de Pennsylvanie, surnommée, par le New York Times, «la magistrate la plus meurtrière des Etats-Unis». «Rendez-nous notre assassin», clamait-elle en décembre dernier, fumeuse du refus de la France d'extrader Einhorn. Dans une lettre à Madeleine Albright, secrétaire d'Etat, Lynne Abraham a réclamé une intervention auprès de Lionel Jospin, résumant les faits: «Au mois de septembre 1977, Ira Einhorn a matraqué à mort sa petite amie, a mis son corps dans une malle et l'a gardé dans son placard pendant un an et demi comme un précieux trophée. Néanmoins, aujourd'hui, il continue à déguster du vin en compagnie de sa femme sur leur domaine». Jusqu'ici, Matignon a refusé de renvoyer un homme qui ne bénéficierait pas d'un procès équitable. Raison purement juridique: aux Etats-Unis, on ne rejuge pas un condamné par contumace. Lynne Abraham a eu beau faire ajouter un «amendement Einhorn» à la loi de son état et promettre d'«essayer» qu'il profite d'un nouveau procès, Lionel Jospin fait le gros dos. Déclenchant, à des milliers de kilomètres, un déclenchement anti-Frenchies et anti-Einhorn. «Je suis Satan là-bas, c'est un peu le phénomène des Sorcières de Salem», dit-il. Là-bas, sa culpabilité ne fait guère de doute. Son affaire passe en boucle sur les écrans de Pennsylvanie. Ses ennemis, dont beaucoup de féministes qui ont témoigné à son procès, dénoncent un mondan macho violent, un gourou illuminé et malfaisant. Un téléfilm de quatre heures a raconté la vie de ce phénomène médiatique, passé de la rubrique politique à celle des faits divers: agitateur pacifiste des sixties, fondateur associé de la Journée de la terre, candidat à la mairie de Philadelphie. Illuminé paranoïaque ensuite, obsédé par des complots occultes et les forces du mal. Puis assassin en cavale, envoyé la veille de son procès, condamné à la peine maximale et à des dommages trente fois supérieurs à ceux de O J Simpson. Et l'impudent vit en Charente, dans un vieux moulin. Il pose pour Esquire, le magazine people américain, nu dans son ruisseau («Des cabriolets tout nu»), s'étrangle Lynne Abraham dans sa lettre à Albright), croquant des pommes, sciant du bois, caressant ses chats. Il lit le Herald Tribune, «pas plus de deux fois par semaine», il écrit des romans, des essais écolo ou futuristes, des pamphlets contre la peine de mort, rétablie dans son Etat natal en

1978 «Je fais ce que j'ai toujours fait: me battre contre la violence qui est aussi américaine que l'apple pie.»

Il a posé son sac en Charente en 1993, après douze ans de cavale en Europe. Elisant la France après l'Irlande, la Suède et les îles Canaries. A ses voisins, il se présente. Eugen Mallon, écrivain britannique. Il joue au bridge, milite contre une centrale nucléaire, écrit, correspond avec les derniers dinosaures de la contre-culture américaine. Eugen aussi pour sa femme suédoise, la rousse Annika, envoûtée dix ans plus tôt à Londres. Pour cet ami des poètes et des opprimés, longtemps entretenu par une veuve milliardaire, elle a tout laissé. Un job dans la mode, une famille richissime. Acquise à sa version fumeuse du dossier judiciaire. «J'étais le Cohn-Bendit de l'époque, à l'échelle américaine. Je connaissais des secrets qui dérangeaient beaucoup de monde. Le meurtre de Holly Maddux était un complot de la CIA pour me faire tomber».

L'air toujours un peu absent, Einhorn retrouve des élans de tribun, contre le dollar roi, l'«indifférence inculte» de la middle-class américaine, son milieu. Fils d'un vendeur de voitures, il évoque son ennui d'enfant, sa famille coupée de ses origines juives d'Europe centrale. Le ballon dans sa ruie de Philadelphie, tous les jours, «il n'y avait que ça». Les comics à 10 cents pour seule lecture. Plus tard, à l'université, il rencontre son «mentor», un professeur de littérature nommé «Morse», alcoolique, homosexuel et dépressif, qui repousse son horizon de «petit-bourgeois». Six ans de vie commune, et Ira, barbe et cheveux longs, se découvre un talent, la parole qui captive. Meetings, tournées, il milite pour la marijuana et contre la guerre du Vietnam, le nucléaire, le racisme. Il crée la première université libre, lance le Net concept avant l'Internet. Quand il est accusé du meurtre de Holly Maddux, en 1978, vieille gloire déjà, isolé des réseaux militants, il trouve auprès de ses derniers fidèles les 40 000 dollars de sa caution et reste libre. La veille de son procès, il s'envole pour l'Europe, crâne et barbe rasés. Face au «complot», il n'a aucune chance. Son dossier d'accusation serait surtout «accablant», selon un avocat français. «Tout allait bien pourtant pour moi, assure-t-il, j'écrivais des articles un peu partout, je passais mon temps à l'étranger». En Pennsylvanie, on se souvient surtout d'un has been, à cette époque plus mondan que tiers-mondiste, régnant sur un harem fasciné et soumis. Il passe cinq ans à Dublin, puis quelque temps à Formentera, avant de croiser Annika, la riche héritière. Ils vivent à Stockholm, où la police manque de les arrêter. Les Canaries ensuite. Puis la Charente et le ruisseau dans la vallée. En juin 1997, la candide Annika ne bronche pas. Envoyés par le FBI, lui-même mandaté par Lynne Abraham, les gendarmes viennent arrêter Ira Einhorn, «la Licorne» en français, alias Eugen Mallon. Ils dévident son CV long comme un jour sans pain complet. Deux fois par semaine, son métier à tisser dans le coffre de sa Fiat 500 pour tromper l'attente du parloir, elle se rend à la prison de Bordeaux. Et se bat pour l'en faire sortir, indifférente aux reporters américains qui rôdent autour de son moulin. Un peu plus tard, l'avis défavorable à son extradition est prononcé par les juges, Einhorn est libéré. Ils régularisent leur mariage et retournent au moulin. Il se remet à son potager et à son nouveau roman, tandis qu'elle s'agit pour organiser les soutiens. «Je ne ressens pas grand-chose, confie-t-il, je travaille, je lis, je vis ma vie. Parfois, j'ai le cœur qui se serre d'effroi, mais ça ne dure pas». Le mois dernier, il a entamé le quarantième tome de son journal, plus riche en réflexions qu'en événements. «Tout est si calme», s'étonne-t-il. ■

Question capitale pour Ira Ein

Alice Sedar

Ira Einhorn risque-t-il la peine capitale en cas de nouveau procès à Philadelphie pour le meurtre de sa petite amie, Helen Holly Maddux, commis en 1977 ? C'est ce que laisse entendre sa compagne suédoise, Anneka, qui convoque aujourd'hui une conférence de presse à Bordeaux en présence de M<sup>e</sup> Dominique Delteil et d'un comité de soutien composé de personnalités politiques.

En cavale depuis 1981, ce gourou « new age » américain de 59 ans avait été interpellé en juin 1997 dans le village de Champagne-Mouton (Charente). Il y avait refait sa vie sous une fausse identité, dans une ferme où il cultivait ses légumes « bio » entre deux parties de bridge.

Condamné en 1993 par contumace, à Philadelphie, à l'emprisonnement à vie, Einhorn continue à clamer son innocence et affirme être la victime d'un complot de la CIA. « Il n'y aura pas de nouveau procès aux États-Unis, comme cela avait été demandé par la justice française. La loi votée en Pennsylvanie à seule fin qu'Ira puisse être rejugé est anticonstitutionnelle, car elle s'applique à un homme déjà jugé. Et même

« Le renvoyer en Pennsylvanie, c'est le menacer de mort. C'est une barbarie »

s'il était à nouveau confronté aux jurés, il n'est pas à exclure qu'il soit condamné à mort », martèle Anneka

Neuf mois après le rejet du pourvoi en cassation introduit par Einhorn pour éviter l'extradition, la décision appartient désormais à Lionel Jos-pin. Aux États-Unis, le district attorney (procureur) de Pennsylvanie, Lynne Abraham, s'impatiente. Elle a demandé au secrétaire d'Etat, Madeleine Albright, d'intervenir auprès de son homologue français. Depuis quelques semaines, la meurtre qu'il a toujours nié

Ira Einhorn ne pouvait rêver plus beau préambule à sa conquête de l'opinion française, alors que certaines per-sonnalités politiques - sans se prononcer sur le fond du dossier - se placent déjà sur le terrain des droits de l'homme In-terrogé par téléphone, le député Vert de la Gironde, Noël Mamère, estime que ce militant de la beat generation, avec lequel il travaille, au côté d'intellectuels, sur les aliments génétiquement manipulés, a payé pour son non-conformisme « Je ne sais pas si Ein-ment en France, et tout être a droit à la rédemption, observe-t-il. Le renvoyer en Pennsylva-nue, c'est le menacer de mort.

C'est une barbarie »
La menace de la peine capitale, pièce maîtresse dans la stratégie de défense d'Ira Ein-horn, pourrait bien n'être pour autant qu'une « fausse que-relle », à en croire Cathie Abookire, du bureau du procureur de Philadelphie « Il ne risque pas d'être exécuté, sim-plement parce qu'en 1977, date du meurtre, la peine de mort avait été abolie en Penn-sylvanie depuis cinq ans Elle n'a été rétablie qu'en 1978 Or, aux États-Unis, la sanction est
toujours conforme à la loi en
vigueur à la date des faits »

Ni les pouvoirs judiciaires ni les autorités politiques n'ont semblé jusqu'ici au fait de ces subtilités américaines La cour d'appel de Bordeaux n'a-t-elle pas agréé la seconde de-mande d'extradition émanant des États-Unis, « à condition que la peine de mort ne soit pas requise ni exécutée si elle était prononcée » ?
Dès lors, on comprend d'au-tant mieux l'énergie déployée par Ira Einhorn, non pas, comme il le réclamait jadis, pour obtenir la révision de son procès, mais pour ne pas finir ses jours derrière les barreaux
