STS Technical Services

[redacted] • cell: [redacted] Fax: [redacted]

At GDMS, Johnson worked in material handling, basically shipping/receiving and mail room jobs. Johnson was asocial, but performed his duties adequately. However, Johnson showed up for work in various states of undress and frequently sat in his car at lunch without clothes. Johnson was counseled about this, but after a few weeks of its continuance, was terminated and walked out of the facility. Johnson did not cause a scene or make any threats, but did inquire about who to talk with to dispute the termination. GDMS informed Johnson that could be taken up with his contracting agency.

Attached to this communication are an email from General Dynamics, a badge photo of Johnson, and a copy of Johnson's passport front pages. [redacted] advised she can be a point of contact for any additional inquiries law enforcement might have. b6 b7C

Date of entry 07/11/2016

On July 10, 2016, [redacted] was interviewed via telephone. After being advised of the identity of the interviewing Agent and the nature of the interview, [redacted] provided the following information: b6 b7C

Johnson joined [redacted] in late 2008, early 2009. [redacted] for about five and a half years.

Looking back, [redacted] did not know that Johnson hated whites. In fact, Johnson was whiter than the other white people in the platoon. Johnson used to like to sing Frank Sinatra, and hung out with mostly white, not black soldiers.

[redacted] could not recall anything about Johnson, whether directly or through others, that caused alarm; however, in hindsight, [redacted] heard that in Afghanistan Johnson told another soldier "before I die I'm gonna go down in history," which now causes him alarm. Further, Johnson loved guns, so [redacted] and Johnson used to discuss guns, but nothing in those discussions gave [redacted] any cause for concern.

Johnson was very close with [redacted] thinks Johnson wanted more than just a friendship with [redacted] but [redacted] did not. About five or six months into deployment Johnson started pressing the issue, which culminated with [redacted] underwear being stolen from a truck that was only accessed by [redacted] and Johnson. When searched, the underwear was located under Johnson's mattress, but, instead of accepting responsibility, Johnson ran away with the underwear, threw them in the dumpster, and pretended like he didn't know anything about them. b6 b7C

Johnson and his unit deployed September 20, 2013. The unit returned September 22, 2014, but, because of the underwear incident, Johnson returned to the United States sooner.

After Johnson returned home, he Facebook messaged [redacted] that his apartment was broken into when he deployed. [redacted] told him to call the police. About two months ago, Johnson again messaged [redacted] and asked him for help with his VA paperwork. [redacted] told Johnson that he no longer worked for the same unit and advised Johnson to contact someone else. Besides these two instances, [redacted] has not spoken with Johnson post-deployment, and in neither of these instances was there reason to believe that Johnson would do something violent.

Official Record

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

Date of entry 07/11/2016

On July 10, 2016, [redacted] was interviewed via telephone. After being advised of the identity of the interviewing Agent and the nature of the interview, [redacted] provided the following information: b6 b7C

[redacted] and Johnson were best friends and colleagues in the military, where both were carpentry mason specialists.

[redacted] said Johnson had serious anger issues, which included violence, though Johnson's violence was never directed at her. About two years prior to their 2013 deployment, [redacted] told Johnson she wanted to go to college six hours away. Johnson got so angry he punched a car window and had to go to the hospital because he severed his artery.

The whole time [redacted] knew Johnson, Johnson had anger issues. [redacted] thought these issues started Johnson's childhood when his parents divorced, which caused Johnson to feel rejected. [redacted] felt that this rejection was the root cause of Johnson's anger issues.

[redacted] said that Johnson's response to authority and the chain of command was abnormal. Johnson always took everything personally and would anger easily. b6 b7C

[redacted] did not think Johnson would handle the stress of deployment very well and advised her superiors against his deployment. They did not listen and deployed Johnson anyways. During deployment, [redacted] obtained leadership roles and eventually [redacted] which made Johnson even more secluded and defiant. [redacted] did not think this stress, seclusion, and defiance caused his behavior on July 7, 2016 but said that Johnson's termination from the military probably set him along to path to find something new to be a part of.

[redacted] had no idea why Johnson would choose to murder white police officers. [redacted] said their platoon was predominantly white, and Johnson used to joke that he was the whitest black guy anyone ever knew.
